Task 1

Read this article about business managers. Some words have been removed from the text. Your task is to fill in the gaps (1-7) from the list below. Write the letters into the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0). Remember that there are two extra letters that you do not need.

Bullying in the workplace

We have all worked in companies where a manager's behaviour and integrity leave much to be desired. A recent survey of British employees reveals that (0) _____ "ruled by fear", "were bullies", "were opinionated and arrogant", "were dishonest and devious", "would blame their staff" or "were scared 'Yes men' who wouldn't rock the boat".

In fact (1) _____ how these people ever got senior management roles in the first place. According to a joint study by Fairplace, specialists in career and talent management, and Cass Business School, (2) _____ can affect your boss's behaviour. As people move into senior positions they often find themselves outside their comfort zone – they are confronted with unfamiliar issues (3) _____ and a high degree of uncertainty, along with the pressure of having to make big decisions that are very "visible" in the sense that (4) _____ who carries the can. Therefore managers can feel even more stressed and isolated if (5) _____ rather than harnessing their support and talent.

In order to improve the negative behaviour of (6) _____ , Cindy Mahoney from Fairplace suggests senior management should:

a) explain to bullying managers what types of behaviour are unacceptable;
b) show them that (7) _____ is not an effective strategy for success;
c) give them coaching to help them choose more suitable behaviour.

Task 2

Read this article about a liberal school in New York City and then read the sentences following it.

- Mark a sentence A if it is true according to the article.
- Mark it B if it is false.
- Mark it C if there isn't enough information in the text to say if it is true or not.

Write your answers in the white boxes next to the numbers (8-17) as in the example (0).

Students rule at this New York school

One recent day at the Brooklyn Free School, the "schedule" included the following: horror movies, chess and making caves for Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Not that the students had to go to any of these sessions. At this school, students don't get grades, don't have homework, don't take tests, and don't even have to go to class unless they want to.

"You can do basically anything at any time, and it's just a lot more fun because sometimes when you need a break at regular schools you can't get it," said Sophia Bennett Holmes, 12, an aspiring singer-actress-fashion designer.

"Free schools," which had their flowering decades ago, operate on the belief that children are naturally curious and learn best when they want to, not when they are forced to. Today, the approach is getting another look from some parents and students tired of standardized testing, excessive homework, and overly rigid curriculums in traditional education.

At the Brooklyn Free School, much of the decision-making occurs in a compulsory weekly gathering. Here, students can air grievances, pose challenges and propose rules. Even the youngest kids have a vote equal to staffers. One agreed-upon rule? No sword-fighting allowed inside.

Even among some champions of alternative education, free schools are considered a bit too radical. "You don't throw the baby out with the bath water," said Jeanne Allen, president of the Center for Education Reform. "You don't get rid of all structure and standards if you want your child to be able to deal with all different settings." Others say free schools could gain popularity if the emphasis on testing and regimented curriculums keeps up in traditional schools.

But what about the basics? Long division, spelling, algebra? Is it enough to let a child decide when to learn those things? That troubles a few parents who use outside tutors for their children. Others disagree, noting most adults can barely remember, or rarely use, most of what schools pounded into them.

Students at this school will eventually have to meet a set of graduation "requirements," where they must present a portfolio showing proficiency in areas such as communication, investigation and reflection.

But the definition of proficiency, like much of the school, is flexible.

0)	Students are allowed to watch films at the Brooklyn Free School.	0)	A
8)	Whichever it is, students have to choose one of the activities offered by the school.	8)
9)	Free schools started less than ten years ago.	9)
10)	Some people are unhappy with the fact that students can't avoid studying certain subjects at traditional schools.	10)
11)	Students can miss the weekly meeting if they want to.	11)
12)	Teachers don't have more power than students when it comes to making decisions at the school meeting.	12)
13)	School meetings are usually held on the first day of the week.	13)
14)	Ms. Allen is a firm believer in traditional education.	14)
15)	Some people believe that free schools could become more fashionable if they set students demanding tests.	15)
16)	Some of the parents at the Brooklyn school believe that people don't remember the things they learnt at school very well.	16)
17)	Students are not assessed in any way when they leave the Brooklyn Free School.	17)

Task 3

Read this text about diamonds and then read the sentences (18-22) following it. Your task is to decide which of the options A, B, C or D best completes each sentence so that it corresponds to the information in the text. Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).

Blood diamond

Conflict diamonds, also known as blood diamonds, are diamonds that are used by rebel groups to fuel conflict and civil wars. They have financed brutal conflicts in Africa that have resulted in the death and displacement of millions of people. Diamonds have also been used by terrorist groups such as al-Qaeda to fund their activities and for money-laundering purposes.

Before the premier of the movie Blood Diamond, leading human rights organizations Global Witness and Amnesty International, along with other experts, warned that blood diamonds are still a problem and called on the public to urge governments, especially the U.S. government, and the diamond industry to strengthen diamond-monitoring systems. They also ask consumers to demand written guarantees from retailers that their jewellery contains no conflict diamonds. “Right now there is no way of ensuring 100 percent that the diamond in your engagement ring is conflict free,” said C. Gooch, Executive Director of Global Witness. “But consumers can change this, by taking a firm stand.”

Dramatic undercover footage, released before the film’s premier by a UK company in association with Insight News TV, showed New York diamond dealers eager and willing to buy diamonds with no accompanying paperwork to confirm that they are not blood diamonds.

The film Blood Diamond is set against the backdrop of civil war and chaos in 1990’s Sierra Leone, and is the story of Archer, a South African mercenary, and Solomon, a Mende fisherman. Both men are African, but their histories are as different as can be, until their fates become joined in a common search to recover a rare pink diamond that can transform their lives. While in prison for smuggling, Archer learns that Solomon − who was taken from his family to work in the diamond fields − has found and hidden the extraordinary rough stone. With the help of Maddy, an American journalist, the two men set off on a journey through rebel territory, a journey that could save Solomon’s family and give Archer a chance he thought he would never have.

“A film can be an incredibly powerful means of inspiring people to take action,” said Amy O’Meara of Amnesty International. “What Blood Diamond illustrates is that even a small percentage of conflict stones can have tragic consequences.”

Global Witness and Amnesty International work to highlight the links between the exploitation of natural resources, conflict and corruption. Global Witness was co-nominated for the 2003 Nobel Peace Prize for its work in campaigning against conflict diamonds and for setting up an international diamond certification scheme.

Cosmonaut prepares for golf stunt

A Russian cosmonaut is preparing to hit a golf ball during a spacewalk outside the International Space Station (ISS)

Flight engineer Mikhail Tyurin will knock a lightweight ball off a tee, (0) _____ . A Canadian golf club maker is paying the Russian space agency an undisclosed sum for Tyurin's time. Nasa held up the stunt for months while safety experts checked possible flight paths to make sure the ball would not head back towards the space station.

"I play ice hockey and my understanding is (23) _____ ," said Mr Tyurin, who has been taking many practice swings to brush up his technique ahead of the shot, (24) _____ .

Responding to questions about the safety, the flight engineer replied: "There is no question: it's safe." Nasa flight director Holly Ridings added: "Of course the crew is taking this very, very seriously (25) _____ . There is absolutely no danger of re-contact with the space station."

Federal law bars the US space agency from getting any money for its involvement.

Mr Tyurin, who has been aboard the station since September, isn't expected to hit the ball hard, (26) _____ . The ball itself weighs just 4.5g (0.16 ounce) instead of the standard-issue 45g (1.6 ounce) ball. The Russian has to make the shot one-handed (27) _____ .

Station commander Michael Lopez-Alegria, (28) _____ , will help set up a camera to film the shot for an upcoming television commercial. Tyurin's drive is expected to be one for the record books, (29) _____ . Nasa figures it will fall into Earth's atmosphere and be incinerated within three days. The Toronto-based golf club maker, called Element 21 Golf, (30) _____ , is betting on three years.

During the Apollo 14 moon mission in 1971, US astronaut Alan Shepard hit a golf ball from the lunar surface and boasted that it travelled "miles and miles" in the low-gravity atmosphere.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in this test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to study the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After another short silent period we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- You will also have some time to check your work at the end of each task.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a check [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is about 30 minutes long.

- In this section you are going to hear an interview with Chrissie, a young British woman who is currently living in Hungary.
- Your task will be to circle the letter(s) of the correct answer(s) in the boxes on the right. Please note that in this task both answers may be correct. However, there is always at least one correct answer. This means you might have to circle one or two letters.
- First, you will have some time to study the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, after a short pause, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- At the end, you will have some more time to check your work.

Task A

You and your English friend Mike have decided to do charity work in the UK in your summer holidays. He has sent you the following advertisement for a job he is interested in, and wants to know your opinion:

Charity Fundraising

Our Charity Fundraisers work in teams of 4-5 raising funds for St John Ambulance.

This is a full time post, with a minimum contract time of 4 weeks.

Our fundraising campaigns consist of speaking to people about the work of the Charity so as to gain supporters for the charity.

This job is all about personality: you need to be bright, bubbly, energetic and have the ability to talk passionately about the charity you represent.

If this sounds like you, APPLY NOW!

Write a letter of 120-150 words to Mike in which you tell him:

- what you think of the job and why;
- why you think you would / wouldn't be the right person for it;
- what other kinds of charity work you might be interested in doing during your holiday.

Begin your letter like this:

Dear Mike,

Task B

Readers of the Healthy Life Magazine have been invited to give their opinion about the following problem:

Doping is becoming a serious problem with young athletes

The use of performance enhancing drugs among young sportspeople has approximately doubled since 1995, according to a new study.

"While there were numerous public and private intervention efforts in the late 1990s and early 2000s, our society continues to greatly reward winning at all costs," said Charles Yesalis, professor of health policy and administration and exercise and sport science. "This negative message constantly bombards our young people and is difficult to contradict. We need to review our strategies, as well as strengthen our moral attitudes toward all kinds of cheating in sports."

Write an article of 200-250 words in which you give your opinion. Include the following:

- the reasons why young sportspeople use anabolic steroids;
- if you think it is more of a health issue or a moral question;
- what could be done to stop it.

This is the title of your article:

To Win at All Costs?
