Task 1

Read this story of a driving accident and then read the short summary following it. Your task is to fill the gaps in the summary with just one word based on the information in the text. Write your answers on the dotted lines as in the example.

My first crash

I have never had a big full-scale crash, but the first one did seem important to me at the time.

Although I was already in my forties I had only just passed my driving test. I was in my husband's yellow Sunbeam Alpine on holiday in the Irish Republic, with my mum.

There was nobody else involved. There was no traffic to be seen. I couldn't even blame the weather. As I was turning off the road into the driveway of the house somehow I managed to catch the front of the car on the gate. My heart sank when I heard the crunch. I can remember feeling real shame in front of my mother for doing something so stupid.

I got out to have a look. It wasn't that bad but there was a long scratch on the front.

I dreaded having to tell my husband. He was very keen on driving and I knew he was also particularly fond of his Alpine. When I did tell him, he pretended he didn't mind but I knew he did really.

It wasn't a very exciting crash but I took it more to heart than most people. I think it was because I was a novice driver. I didn't realise this sort of thing could happen to anybody.

Summary

The author says she has (0) _____ had a serious driving accident. She was over (1) _____ years old when she got her driving licence. Her (2) _____ accident, though not a serious one, made her feel really ashamed. It happened while she was driving her (3) _____ car. The weather was fine and there were no other (4) _____ on the road. There was nobody else to blame, just (5) _____ . As she was turning into the driveway of the house she hit the (6) _____ and damaged the front of the car. She felt miserable because she didn't know that this kind of (7) _____ was quite common.

Task 4

Read this article about skiing in the Alps and then read the sentences that follow it. Your task is to choose the answer that is nearest in meaning to what the article says. Write the letters in the white boxes. There is an example for you.

Up and Away

Every winter, some 1.25 million Britons migrate to the Alps, where they find purpose-built resorts with fantastic slopes near villages that are so commercialised that it's impossible to move without ringing a cowbell. More and more people are beginning to realise that there are other things you can do in the mountains besides downhill skiing, and that away from the fashionable slopes there are exciting areas of country to be discovered.

Two ways of reaching parts of the Alps that others don't are heli-skiing (flying in a helicopter to a mountain and skiing down from there) and para-gliding (jumping from a high place and floating slowly to the ground with a parachute-like structure). Of course, you have to be extremely rich to do the first and experienced and mad-brave to do the second.

A much gentler way of getting to the Alpine outback is heels-free or Nordic skiing (skiing across the countryside), which is the traditional Scandinavian method of winter travel. Using flexible boots and lightweight skis wrapped in skins (one-sided Velcro these days) it's possible to climb most slopes. And the thing about heels-free skiing is that it is a journey; using mountain huts that offer everything from beds and showers to hot meals and cold beers, it is possible to spend whole weeks on the hill. It's an eco-friendly form of discovery, too: no buses, no trains, no lifts, no hotels, no street lights, no crowded streets or car parks. Best of all you will never meet that curse of downhill skiing: the queue.

If you don't feel athletic enough to do this, rent a house in one of the smaller villages, those that lie below the snowline but are only 15 minutes or so by bus from the nearest lift. By living in a small village you'll have a better chance of knowing your neighbours, and if you stay long enough, you may even be accepted as part of the community.

0)	A

0) More than a million Brits go to the Alps every year in order to
~~A) enjoy skiing~~.
B) learn to ski.
C) look fashionable.
D) settle there.

26)

26) People are getting less and less happy with famous resorts because
A) the skiing is not as good as it used to be.
B) the villages have become too touristy.
C) there are too many cows in the villages.
D) there are too many people on the slopes.

27)

27) The author suggests that
A) para-gliding is more dangerous than heli-skiing.
B) heli-skiing is the best way of avoiding crowds.
C) you have to be brave to try the first.
D) brave people are usually a little mad.

28)

28) The author recommends Nordic skiing because
A) it is the traditional Scandinavian method.
B) it is a 'green' sport.
C) the boots are lightweight.
D) you're wrapped in skins.

29)

29) The most enjoyable thing about Nordic skiing is that you
A) get good meals in the huts.
B) meet friendly people on the way.
C) can forget about queues.
D) don't need electric lights.

30)

30) Away from fashionable resorts you will
A) live below the snowline.
B) meet fewer people.
C) get to know local people.
D) have to use the nearest ski lift.

This is the end of this part of the exam.

Task B

You have recently become a reader of the "Teens' Embarrassing Problems" page on the Internet. You have found the following letter:

I'm 16, a high-school student who enjoys knitting. I've made myself some pretty sweaters. The lady next door complimented me on one of my creations and asked if I'd make one for her. She offered to pay me.
I was thrilled, bought the yarn the next day and had her sweater ready within a week. When I handed it to her, she said, "Thank you. It's lovely" – and not one word about paying me. What should I do?

Knit-Wit
