Fontos tudnivalók

- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

Task 1

- Read this review of a children's book and then read the statements (1-7) following it.
- Mark a statement A if it is true according to the article.
- Mark it B if it is false.
- Mark it C if, on the basis of the article, it cannot be decided if it is true or false.
- Write the letters in the white boxes as in the example (0).

BOOKCLUB

Christopher Middleton on a children's novel not to be ignored

First invent your villain. That's the golden rule of all story-telling, as suggested by unconventional Andy Stanton, author of Mr Gum and the Power Crystals, the fourth book in a series which begins with You're A Bad Man, Mr Gum! "I thought that if I took as my starting point a truly horrible person, then the stories would flow," declares Stanton. "And they did!"

He hasn't shied away from horribleness, either. As well as having ugly bloodshot eyes, Mr Gum has a personality that's less than winning. "He was a complete horror who hated children and fun," writes Stanton. "What he liked was snoozing in bed all day long, being lonely and scowling at things."

Together with his henchman Billy William the Third (England's Most Horrible Butcher), Mr Gum spends most of his time thinking up foul and anti-social schemes; in this book, for example, he sets out to reactivate a 450-year-old curse that will bring fire and destruction to his home town of Lamonic Bibber.

All he needs to achieve his dark ends is a pair of magical stones (also known as power crystals). And the only person standing in his way is a brave little nine-year-old girl called Polly.

"I think Polly is probably the only character in my books who isn't completely stupid," says Stanton proudly, and a look down his cast list pretty much confirms this point of view. That said, Polly's friends and neighbours do combine kindness with daftness, especially the eccentric Friday O'Leary and Old Granny, whose special talent is to shake her head and say: "The past has a way of repeating itself" again and again.

Stanton's writing method is to throw parts of a conventional novel up in the air and then see where they come down. And it's this extra element of norm-bending that makes the book enjoyable for all ages, although from the outside you would think it was aimed at under-eights.

0) Andy Stanton originally thought that an evil character was difficult to write about.

1) It was his intention to make Mr Gum as nasty as possible.

2) Billy William lives in a town called Lamonic Bibber.

3) Mr Gum's evil plans are directed against Lamonic Bibber.

4) The magical stones belong to Polly.

5) Polly is a lonely child.

6) Old Granny is an intelligent and talented lady.

7) Mr Gum and the Power Crystals is an unconventional book that appeals to both children and adults.

Task 2

- Read this account of a piano tuner's work, and then read the summary.
- Your task is to fill the gaps (8-13) in the summary with one word only.
- Write your answers on the dotted lines.
- An example marked (0) has been given for you.

THE PIANO TUNER

A little bit of patience and a lot of skill is the key to perfect tuning

Has it ever occurred to you that when you hear a piano played at a concert or on a recording, you hear the tuner's work as much as that of the pianist? Usually we are only remembered if something goes wrong, and then there are no bouquets or subsequent royalties on CD sales!

The tuner has to make sure not only that the instrument is in tune but also that it's performing correctly. It has to be 'regulated' and 'voiced' as the artist requires, which is not always easy to do.

What tuners need most of all is quiet, which at some concert halls can only be achieved in the middle of the night. You would be amazed at how little understanding there can be from both amateur and professional venues. At some places it is thought obligatory to put out the audience chairs while the piano tuner is working!

When you arrive you often find that the rehearsal is overrunning and the conductor needs 'just 15 more minutes', thereby reducing your working time − sometimes you have to beg them to finish as you see the time quickly ticking away. No sooner have you started work than inevitably various members of the orchestra return early and sometimes even start practising while you're trying to tune! The audience also often enters too early and takes no account of the poor tuner, to the point where you can barely hear.

Among many members of the public, the image of the piano tuner is not good − an old man with case and stick. However, today's tuners are dynamic people who travel worldwide to offer their skills to top concert halls and pianists.

SUMMARY

Pianists are not the only people responsible for the success of a concert, but the contribution of the (0) _____ is often overlooked. Their job is to ensure that the (8) _____ sounds exactly as it should. Ideally, they would need absolute (9) _____ for their work. At some venues, however, this is rather (10) _____ to get. People working in the concert hall, the public, or even (11) _____ can make a lot of noise. Another thing that is necessary for doing the job properly is (12) _____ , but often there is too little of this, too, between the (13) _____ and the concert. Contrary to popular belief, piano tuners have a rather dynamic lifestyle.

IRON MAIDENS

Two determined Londoners have set their sights on victory at one of the world's toughest sporting challenges, the Ironman

Ironman: even the name suggests something beyond normal human strength. Envisage muscle-bound superheroes covered in Lycra doing incredible deeds and you wouldn't be far wrong. The world-famous triathlon is a gruelling test of endurance attracting 30,000 athletes each year.

Whatever the scenery, whatever the weather this formidable event is the same: a 3.8-km swim, a 180-km cycle ride and finally a 42-km marathon, to be completed consecutively and within a 17-hour limit. Although ridiculously difficult, this test of physical courage has not disheartened first-time competitors Nicole Mathison and Karen Berry. "Before we started training, living and working in London meant we spent more nights in the pub than on the race track," says Nicole, an information manager. "Now, as well as the physical improvements, I actually feel more alive; the mental and physical changes are amazing."

"I know completing is not a matter of luck, it's all in the preparation," says Karen. So, after eighteen months of training, how confident do they feel? "We've always believed that Ironman success is achievable, but for us the main thing is completion, the actual endurance is the challenge, not the time," says Nicole.

It's every man (and every woman) for themselves with this race. "I've had to acquire new skills, like fixing punctures," says Karen. "If you break down during the cycling section, there's no big strong man out there that is going to stop and help you refit your inner tube."

Ironman is definitely for the fit, but not necessarily the young. Sister Madonna Buder, an American nun, completed the 2006 course in Hawaii aged 76, finishing with just over one hour to spare, double the world record of seven hours 50 minutes set in Germany in 1997.

DEATH IN THE VIENNA WOODS

It was a scandal that shook an empire. At 7am on January 30th, 1889, the Archduke Rudolf, heir to the throne of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, was found dead together with his mistress, Baroness Marie Vetsera in the Imperial hunting lodge at Mayerling in the Vienna Woods, fifteen miles southwest of the capital. Was it suicide as (0) _____ or was it murder? The police closed their investigations with surprising haste, and the dossier on the investigations (22) _____ in the state archives as it should normally have been. Members of the Imperial household were sworn to secrecy. Yet, despite these attempts to cover up, almost at once (23) _____ in Vienna of a politically motivated assassination.

The death of the Crown Prince had grave consequences for the history of Europe. Undoubtedly, it (24) _____ in the developments that led to the assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand by a Serb nationalist at Sarajevo in June 1914 and the subsequent drift into the First World War.

Unlike his conservative father, the Emperor Franz Joseph, Rudolf was reform-minded and liberal. His education (25) _____ by one of his tutors, Father Jacint Rónay, who taught the young Rudolf about philosophy, the ethics of power and the history of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. Rónay (26) _____ in the Hungarian Democratic Revolution of 1848 to 1849; he had narrowly escaped capture and lived in England as an exile for almost two decades. With his writings and lectures during this period, he (27) _____ as a radical philosopher.

Rónay was much impressed by the maturity of the young Rudolf and, as well as shaping his thinking in a liberal mould, instilled in him a deep sense of his historical responsibility. Using various pen names, Rudolf began to write newspaper articles and pamphlets (28) _____ pan-German Austrian policies and spelling out his own radical ideas about internal reforms and foreign policies. By the end of 1888, Rudolf (29) _____ the German Kaiser Wilhelm and the Emperor Franz Joseph, as well as powerful pan-German members of the Vienna establishment.

So were the rumours true? If so, who exactly were the paymasters who hired the hit-men for that January night in 1889? We may never know. What we do know is that Rudolf (30) _____ : Wilhelm did try to create a Greater German Reich by force of arms and, in the process, totally destabilized the whole of Europe for the next half century.

FINGERPRINTS

Everyone's fingerprints are different, and we leave marks on everything we touch. This makes fingerprints (0) _____ (use) for identifying individuals. People recognised the (19) _____ (unique) of fingerprints 1,000 years ago. However, the FBI began collecting prints only in the 1920s. Ink and paper were used for taking fingerprints then. Today, people press their fingers on electronic sensors that scan their fingertips and create (20) _____ (digit) images, which are stored on computers.

Despite the advances, fingerprinting is not an exact science. Prints left at a crime scene are often (21) _____ (complete). Also, our fingerprints are always changing slightly. Sometimes they're wet, sometimes dry. The process of taking a fingerprint can itself change the print. For example, the skin may roll, or the amount of (22) _____ (press) may vary.

Fingerprints are often used (23) _____ (success) to catch criminals. Unfortunately, however, authorities make as many as 1,000 (24) _____ (correct) fingerprint matches each year in the United States.

Computer scientists all over the world are trying to develop computer systems for making (25) _____ (accurate) fingerprint matches. They have to be careful when writing programs to analyse prints. If a program requires too exact a match, it won't find any (26) _____ (possible). If it looks too broadly, it will produce too many choices. To keep these (27) _____ (require) in balance, programmers are constantly refining their techniques for sorting and matching patterns.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After another short silent period we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- You will also have some time to check your work at the end of each task.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is about 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

This is the end of TASK 2.

- In this section you will hear an interview with an American man who won a lot of money on the lottery.
- Your task is to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, after a short pause, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

Task A

During your stay in the US your American friend, Jeff, sent you a brochure about a rock climbing trip which he wants to take part in, asking you if you would like to join him.

Rock Climbing (1/2 - 5 days)

These trips emphasize developing individual climbing technique and skills. They are based on a hands-on approach and are conducted in an amazing alpine setting. Towering peaks and glaciers provide a spectacular backdrop and great terrain to develop climbing skills. Our programs provide an excellent introduction to rock climbing for beginners and valuable practice for more advanced climbers. Our low client to guide ratio allows us the flexibility to accommodate individual goals and expectations. All climbing equipment is provided.

Write an email of 120-150 words in which you

- Ask about the destination, the length and the price of the trip Jeff has chosen
- Say what you like about the idea and what your worries are
- Say if you would like to take part and why

Begin your email like this:

Dear Jeff,

Task B

You have read an article on the internet on Home Rules Contracts, which some family therapists find useful for avoiding and settling family problems.

A Home Rules Contract is a written set of expectations that parents have of their teens. The contract includes basic rules, consequences and privileges. The final contract should be the result of negotiation and compromise, taking everybody's ideas into consideration.

A list of possible priorities to include in a Home Rules Contract includes:

Curfew[1]	Computer use
Chores	Use of the car
School behavior and grades	Alcohol/drug use
Smoking	Expression of anger or violence
Telephone use	Conflict resolution

Write an article of 200-250 words for the school magazine in which you give your opinion. Include the following points:

- What do you think of Home Rules Contracts?
- Do you agree with the list of priorities? Give your reasons.
- Do you know any other effective ways of settling family problems?

This is the title of your article:

Law and Order at Home?

[1] Curfew: time when children must be home in the evening
