Fontos tudnivalók

- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

Task 1

- Read this article about a famous English artist and then read the gapped sentences (1-8) following it.
- Your task is to fill the gaps with one word only based on the information in the article.
- The exact word you need may or may not be in the text.
- Write your answers on the dotted lines as in the example.

TURNER'S ROME MASTERPIECE TO GO ON SALE AT SOTHEBY'S

One of the last Turner masterpieces still in private hands will go on sale for the first time in 130 years with an estimated price of £20 million. The painting, entitled Rome, from Mount Aventine, set a record price of £6,000 last time it was sold, but has remained in the same family since 1878. Considered an "extraordinary" example of the painter's work, and one of fewer than ten Turner paintings still in private collections, it will now go up for sale for only the second time in its history.

A spokesman for the Roseberry family, its current owner, said: "During the first hundred years we owned this picture, it hung in pride of place in our homes – first in London and later in Buckinghamshire. For the last forty years or so, the painting has been on loan to major museums, and we have drawn much pleasure from knowing that so many people have had the opportunity to see and enjoy it. Now, in order to maintain the estates for which we are responsible, and to safeguard their future, we have made the decision to sell it."

Alex Bell of Sotheby's Old Master Paintings Departments said: "This painting, which is nearly 200 years old, looks today as if it has come straight from the easel of the artist. Never subject to restoration, the picture retains the freshness of the moment it was painted: the hairs from Turner's brush, the drips of liquid paint which have run down the edge of the canvas, and every scrape of his palette knife have been preserved in incredible detail."

Commissioned by Turner's patron Hugh Munro of Novar in 1828, it took the artist seven years to complete after a visit to Rome and numerous detailed studies. In 1836, when Turner exhibited his work at the Royal Academy, the Morning Post wrote: "This amazing picture confounds all criticism: it is beyond praise." It later hung in the London home of Hugh Monro of Novar until his death, whereupon it was bought at auction by Archibald Primrose, 5th Earl of Roseberry.

The vast majority of Turner's output is currently housed in public galleries, after the artist bequeathed his collection to the nation on his death.

GEORGE MONBIOT:

HOW I ENDED UP IN THE JUNGLE WITH DEADLY HORNETS IN MY HAIR

In 1987, I was working with the photographer Adrian Arbib in the capital of West Papua. One morning I set off for a walk in the forest close to the town. It was a hot day and I soon took off my shirt and slung it over my shoulder. I followed a trail that took me down to a small stream. Halfway up the slope on the other side, I brushed against a rotten stump. I took another step and found myself under attack.

Giant hornets swarmed over my body, buzzing frantically. I knew how dangerous they were: plenty of people had died from their stings. I panicked. I was stung eight times − I suspected I was as good as dead.

I stumbled across the clearing, shouting for help. I saw a rickety house. There was a man inside; I stepped forward and said: "Hello. I'm George. I've just been attacked by hundreds of insects." The man's mouth fell open; he didn't seem to believe what I said.

Instead of serangga − which means insects − in my panic I'd said semangka; or watermelons. "I need help. I was attacked by watermelons. Eight of them bit me, eight watermelons." He stared at me, his eyes becoming bigger and rounder. Then he suddenly smiled. "Ahh, serangga. You stay here, I have some medicine for you."

I was going to be saved! These men lived with the hornets, didn't they? They must have an antidote, refined over millennia from forest herbs. The man began to rub something in my back. It felt soothing, and the pain began to ebb. The smell of the medicine was strangely familiar.

I turned my head and saw in his hand a jar of VicksVapoRub, the ointment I sometimes use for mosquito bites. "No, no! I'm going to die!" I cried and ran from the room. Just before I reached the town, the convulsions began. I stumbled along the streets, shuddering, holding on to buildings to stay upright. I fell through the door of the hotel and into the room, where Adrian was sitting on his bed, reading.

I tried to speak, but my mouth didn't seem to work. I fell face down onto my bed, shivering violently. He must have noticed the welts on my back, because he forced a couple of antihistamines down me. The fit began to subside. I was saved.

REAL-LIFE LIBYA PLANE HIJACK HALTS HIJACK FILM SHOOT

The movie Entebbe is based on a hostage situation that happened 40 years ago in Uganda. However, unlike that hijacking, in an incident on Friday that involved a Libyan Airways plane, the two hijackers surrendered peacefully to police. Officials said the Entebbe film was just being shot at Malta International Airport, but the crew had to halt filming on the airport grounds when the Libyan plane landed there. The domestic flight with 118 people on board had taken off from Sabha and had been bound direct for the Libyan capital Tripoli.

The head of airport security said that the Maltese armed forces were well able to cope with such events. "We've had five hijackings landing here and ironically today they were actually filming Entebbe on the airport grounds - and that had to be stopped," she told the BBC.

The Friday hijacking ended peacefully. However, in Uganda in 1976 the hostage situation dragged on for about a week after Palestinian hostage-takers hijacked the flight from Tel Aviv to Paris and diverted it to Entebbe. The Air France plane had 250 passengers – many of whom were Israeli – and 12 crew. The hijackers demanded the release of 54 militants held by Israel and four other countries and a $5million ransom.

In one of the most daring operations in its history, Israel secretly sent a unit of elite commandos - led by Yonatan Netanyahu, the brother of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu - to rescue the hostages. They flew eight-and-a-half-hours over 4,000km, through hostile territory and beneath the scope of enemy radar, to carry out a surprise raid. The commandos killed all the hostage-takers as well as 20 Ugandan troops before flying the freed passengers and crew back to Israel. Three hostages lost their lives in the operation, as well as Yonatan Netanyahu, the only fatality among the troops.

SHAKESPEARE'S SKULL 'MISSING' FROM HIS GRAVE

More than 250 years after Shakespeare's death, a story began to circulate that his skull had (0) _____ stolen from his grave in Holy Trinity Church in Stratford-upon-Avon by trophy hunters. For more than a century the tale (8) _____ widely dismissed as a myth, but now, on the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's death, archaeologists believe they have found evidence (9) _____ support the claims.

Using ground-penetrating radar to scan the grave reputed to (10) _____ Shakespeare's, they have discovered that the skull is apparently absent from the rest of the skeleton. They also established that a skull in a church in Beoley, 20 miles away, (11) _____ according to local legend belonged to the playwright, was in fact that (12) _____ a 77-year-old woman. This means, they said, that Shakespeare's skull could still be at large somewhere.

Shakespeare's grave is not marked with his name, but is covered (13) _____ a stone inscribed with a curse to ward off anyone planning to move the remains. With the developments of radar and geophysical techniques, the archaeologists realised they could answer many questions about what's beneath those stones (14) _____ having to dig them up. The scan showed evidence of a "mysterious and significant repair" to the head end of the grave, giving credence to a story published in Argosy magazine in 1879. According to this, a group of trophy hunters (15) _____ lifted the stone, dug up the grave and stolen Shakespeare's skull. The technology shows half of the grave has not been disturbed. It means Shakespeare's remains are there.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After another short silent period we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

TASK 1

- In this section you will hear a news report about an unusual incident in a British school.

TASK 2

In this section you will hear a psychologist talk about some tell-tale signs that reveal that someone is lying.

- Your task is to match the pictures (A-K) on the left to one of the signs (Signs 1-10) on the right. Put the letters in the grid.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, after a short pause, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.

- In this section you will hear an interview with Harrison Ford, who played the character Han Solo in the Star Wars series.
- Your task is to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, after a short pause, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A= TRUE B= FALSE C= THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

✓ The interviewer and Harrison Ford are going to talk about Star Wars. A

17. The interview takes place about four decades after the first movie was made. ☐

18. Harrison Ford firmly believed in the success of the film from the very beginning. ☐

19. Ford thought it was a simple science fiction story when he first read the script. ☐

20. Ford thought that the characters were like typical fairy-tale characters. ☐

21. Ford thought that Han Solo was more important than the other characters in the film. ☐

22. Ford suggests that the post production didn't add much to the success of the film. ☐

23. Ford does not consider the moral themes as particularly important in the film. ☐

24. Ford's kids didn't particularly enjoy the Star Wars films. ☐

25. Ford thinks that Han Solo and Indiana Jones are equally important characters for his fans. ☐

This is the end of TASK 3, and also the end of the Listening Exam.

Fontos tudnivalók

Mindkét feladatot meg kell írni!
A pontozott sorokra kell írni!
Ügyeljen a megadott szószámra! Amennyiben a létrehozott szöveg jelentősen eltér (rövidebb, hosszabb) a megadott szóintervallumtól, az pontlevonással jár.

Task 1

You are spending 6 months in New York as a visiting student. You have decided to take a course to improve your writing skills and you have found the following advertisement:

GOTHAM TEEN CREATIVE WRITING WORKSHOP
IN NEW YORK CITY

Pressure-free, creativity-stretching, not-like-school courses for writers ages 16-24. Useful for expanding your talent or gaining skills bound to help with essays and schoolwork. We also offer coaching for College Admissions Essays.

There are no grades, no exams, no wrong answers – just creative writing. Each class is taught by a teacher adept at helping young writers discover and develop their unique voices. The idea is to experiment with both fiction and nonfiction.

Better writers produce stronger college applications, and an extracurricular writing class is an impressive addition to any profile. When you know how to express yourself well with words, you've got a special power.

In NYC, this course is offered as a 6-week class (with two 3-hour sessions per week), and also as a 4-week class in the summer (with two 2-hour sessions per week). We also offer a 5-hour one-day course.

Task 2

You have read the following post on the internet forum Feeling Like a Clown:

Greg 17 yrs

I knew something was weird the second I got to class on Tuesday morning. I saw kids whispering and pointing at me. Some were looking at me funny. I sat down next to my best friend, Dylan and picked up the report the teacher, Ms. Crosby, had graded over the weekend. I looked at the "A+" and forgot about the rest of the class for a minute. I had worked hard at that report and was thrilled it had paid off. I looked up and saw a bunch of kids staring at me. While the teacher cleaned up the white board, I whispered to Dylan, "What's going on?" Dylan, looked down and said quietly, "Frank told everyone you copied your report from the internet." "But, that's a lie!" I said. "I never cheat and everyone knows it." I was hurt and angry. I couldn't focus the rest of the morning in class.

In the break, I went up to Frank and asked him if he had really told everyone I had cheated. "It's no big deal," Frank scoffed. "I only told a few people. Lighten up. It was just a joke." I suppose I should have punched him in the face but I didn't and he just walked away, grinning.

Is there anything I can do about it NOW?

Write a reply of 200-250 words to Greg in which you include the following:

- whether you have been in/ heard of a similar situation,
- the difference between a joke and humiliation,
- what you think either Greg or his friend should have done,
- what you think Greg could do now.

Begin your reply like this:
