MARRIAGE PROPOSAL MAPPED OUT BY PORTSMOUTH JOGGER'S APP

A Portsmouth runner has proposed to his girlfriend by spelling out "Will You Marry Me" using a GPS tracking application. The couple met through a mutual friend on Facebook when they commented on a post and then started chatting.

Ben Chudley, 28, used a running app to track his progress around the city's streets before posting the route on Facebook. When he posted it on Tuesday evening, his girlfriend Olivia Abdul saw it and accepted his proposal. Mr Chudley, who had also drawn dinosaurs and cartoon characters in the same way, said the idea was "very me".

He explained he had carefully designed his route using online mapping and had run the 5.71mile (9km) route. Mr Chudley told his girlfriend he was going out for a run before posting the map on Facebook and returning, with flowers and a ring, to hear her response. He admitted that posting it publicly "could have been very embarrassing if she had said no."

Mr Chudley had started a Facebook group of similar 'drawings'. In the past he had attempted a seahorse and a dinosaur but said Portsmouth's regular street layout made it easier to form letters. He added that making a wrong turn half way through a run can be "heart breaking" as it means having to start the tracking again.

Surprised Olivia, who was given a gold and diamond engagement ring, said: "I was so happy."

The bride-to-be said the couple had been flooded with well-wishes from friends and family.

THE WOMAN WHO IS UNABLE TO FEEL FEAR

Mary, a woman from the United States, cannot feel the emotion of fear, because of a very rare genetic condition. She has never been interviewed before, because her doctors say that people could easily take advantage of her if her identity was made public.

She says that she remembers being scared just once in her life. She was still a young girl and her father was fishing and caught a catfish. She was frightened because she didn't want it to bite her. In fact, that was the only time she can remember experiencing fear.

Once, when her sons were small and she was out for a walk, a man called her over. He grabbed her by the shirt, and he held a knife to her throat and told her he was going to cut her. She said, "Go ahead and do it". The man let her go, and she went home, but she didn't call the police, as she didn't see the danger.

She is also unable to recognise a fearful expression on the face of another person. Still, she has normal intelligence and recognises other emotions such as joy, or anger in the same way as others.

If she sees a poisonous snake that would make most people really scared, Mary will touch it without any problem. She isn't afraid in such situations and has no bad memories afterwards.

'If you have no fear, many more terrible things will happen to you,' one of her doctors explained to journalists. 'However, if you have a lot of fear, fewer bad things will probably happen.'

So is it better to be fearful or fearless?

(dailymail.co.uk)

0) Mary has been different from other people ever since she was born.

20) Her story has already appeared in newspapers in the past.

21) She hasn't felt fear since she was a child.

22) Her father stopped fishing after the catfish incident.

23) The police had to save her when a man attacked her in a park.

24) Mary can understand that you are happy if you smile at her.

25) It is difficult for her to remember faces.

26) According to her doctor people like Mary experience more bad things than most people.

New Year's resolutions have a long history. The Babylonians promised to return (0) _____ (borrow) objects and repay their debts at the (1) _____ (begin) of each year, while the Romans started January by making a vow to the god Janus (from whom the month takes its name). "If you're not doing any exercise and set (4) _____ (you) the goal of going to the gym five times a week for half an hour, you're probably not going to achieve it. The other reason is that people are not (5) _____ (necessary) ready to change."

Psychologists at the College recently proposed that, for something positive to happen, people must have the capability, opportunity and (6) _____ (motivate) to make it happen. "Often people aren't making resolutions for the right reasons," says Gardner: "They think that because it's New Year, they're (7) _____ (expect) to say they'll change their behaviour. Task 1

You are studying in Stirling, UK. Your friend Ian wants you to go on a weekend trekking expedition with him. He sent you the following advertisement:

A Short Walking Break in the Scottish Highlands

This short break (3 nights - 3 walking days) takes you into the typical scenery of the Scottish Highlands (mountains, lochs and fast-flowing rivers), but is really easily accessible for a short break. The walk starts and finishes at Callander, the "gateway to the highlands," less than one hour by car (under two hours by public transport) from either Glasgow or Edinburgh. The route takes you through the land of highland legend Rob Roy McGregor, following paths that he followed, and stopping at Balquhidder, where he is now buried in the little kirkyard.

(www.countours.co.uk)

Write an email of 80-100 words to Ian in which you

- tell him if you have any trekking experience,
- ask about accommodation and costs,
- ask about the weather conditions and any necessary equipment.

Begin your email like this:

Task 2

You have received the following email from your American friend Jessica:

> You know I've been a vegetarian for 5 years, mainly for animal rights reasons. Now I have this new boyfriend, Alex, a nice boy… and a die-hard meat lover. This hasn't been a problem so far - we sometimes have lunch together and he has a Big Mac or a huge steak while I munch on my tomato and avocado salad.
> It's his birthday next week and he invited me to his parents' home in Mesa, Arizona (our first mini-holiday together!). There's a traditional birthday dish, he told me, expertly made by his mother: bean stew with lamb, pork, and veal. Can you imagine my horror when I heard that there's going to be a dish with THREE kinds of meat? I immediately said that he had probably noticed I didn't eat meat but he looked surprised and said he thought I was on a diet or something. And that he hoped I wouldn't be rude to his mother and refuse the food, which, he assured me, was absolutely wonderful. He even said that after trying it I would certainly change my mind about not eating meat.
> We haven't talked about it since then and I'm getting more and more scared (I dream of those people in Mesa, trying to force big chunks of meat down my throat) and I don't know what to do. What would you do? Pls help!
