- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

- Read this article about farmers in the UK and then read the gapped sentences.
- Your task is to fill the gaps (1-8) with one word only based on what the article says.
- Write your answers on the dotted lines.
- An example (0) has been given for you.

UK FARMERS STRUGGLE TO HIRE OVERSEAS WORKERS FOR HARVEST

It is getting harder for Angela Wheatley to recruit the roughly 1,500 seasonal workers needed each year to harvest lettuce, radishes and onions on the extensive Eden farm in the south of England.

"In previous years, when we would recruit in Bulgaria and Romania, we would invite 300 people to an event and 600 would turn up," said the human resources director for one of Britain's largest growers of vegetables. "Now we invite 600 people and 100 turn up, and those applying are less educated with lower levels of English." Like all UK growers, Eden relies largely on workers from Eastern Europe to bring in the harvest from April to November.

Attracting the 60,000 to 70,000 seasonal workers needed across Britain each year has been a struggle since the 2016 Brexit referendum, forcing farm businesses to increase wages and spend more to recruit and retain people.

The UK competes for farm workers with countries such as Germany, Spain and the Netherlands, and the fall in the value of the pound means that they risk earning less if they come to Britain. Recruitment agencies say few British workers want temporary jobs that require long hours in difficult conditions. The jobs typically pay workers the national minimum wage of £8.21 an hour plus performance-related bonuses, for example by the kilo of fruit or vegetables picked.

In 2018 58 per cent of growers surveyed by the National Farmers Union reported not being able to secure all the seasonal workers they needed. In contrast, the figure stood at 25 per cent before the Brexit referendum. 48 per cent of farmers also reported crops going unharvested as a result of labour shortages.

A new two-year pilot scheme gives visas to 2,500 seasonal workers from outside the EU to work on British farms, but the government has not yet decided whether to make it permanent.

Farming organisations have urged that the visa programme for non-EU workers be greatly expanded, pointing out that Germany already has a similar scheme.

0) UK farms rely on workers from outside the UK at _____ time.

1) There is a serious _____ of foreign applicants at present.

2) Angela Wheatley is the HR director of _____.

3) Job applicants' knowledge of _____ used to be better.

4) Before 2016 it cost _____ to employ seasonal workers.

5) Because of a weaker _____ it may be more profitable to do farm work on the Continent.

6) Few British people are attracted by the _____ conditions or the pay.

7) Roughly one out of _____ farmers say they are unable to bring in all their harvest because they don't have enough workers.

Task 2

- Read this article about French ways of speaking and then read the statements (9-15) following it.
- Your task is to decide if the statements are true or not.
- Mark a statement A if it is true according to the article
- Mark it B if it is false according to the article.
- Mark it C if there is not enough information in the text to decide if the sentence is true or not.
- An example has been given for you.

A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

WHY THE FRENCH LOVE TO SAY NO

"Non, ce n'est pas possible. I keep telling you, it can't be done," the airline booking agent insisted. We'd been on the phone for 20 minutes as I tried to exchange a full-fare, exchangeable plane ticket. Sitting calmly at home, my eyes took in the beauty of my Parisian apartment. Over the last 18 years, I'd learned to see the beauty that surrounded me as compensation for living in a society where the default answer to almost every question, request or suggestion is a disheartening 'non' (no).

A conversation with French friends and family about their use of 'non' and why it seems to be the national default reads like the script for a Gérard Depardieu comedy. "No, it's not true, we don't always say 'no' first," retorted the 60-something businessman. "No, you're right, even when we agree, we start with no," reacted the lawyer. "Hunh, no… I don't know why…" pondered the young artist.

Olivier Giraud, a French comedian explains this reflex by saying, "We must not forget that the French are a people of protest, and a protest always starts with a 'non'." Indeed, the French have been protesting more or less non-stop since the citizens of Paris stormed the Bastille prison in 1789. Authors Julie Barlow and Jean-Benoît Nadeau agree, "The French Revolution was about the irrevocable right of all citizens to refuse."

Yet 'non' in France does not always mean 'no'. "Contrary to popular opinion, the French do listen, and well, but this usually happens after they say no a couple of times. It takes a certain amount of faith, and sometimes a lot of talking, but you can almost always find the yes hiding behind a French no, if it's there," write Barlow and Nadeau.

Hoping to get to this hidden yes, I re-explained my need for a flight that night. The booking agent replied that the airline required one day's notice to exchange tickets. I asked if that was 24 hours or one calendar day. Since that was not a 'yes' or 'no' question, she was able to tell me it was a calendar day. "When is the very first flight the next day?" I enquired. It was five minutes after midnight – exactly 35 minutes after the flight I had been trying to book for my trip. At last, I had my yes.

0)	The travel agent refused the author's request several times.	0)	A
9)	The author wanted a refund for his plane ticket.	9)
10)	For the author the beauty of his Paris home makes up for how discouragingly negative French people sound.	10)
11)	In the "Gérard Depardieu comedy", none of the three speakers agreed with the author.	11)
12)	Julie Barlow and Jean-Benoît Nadeau are the authors of a book about the French Revolution.	12)
13)	The French are generally regarded as good listeners.	13)
14)	Foreigners who speak French are more likely to get what they want.	14)
15)	The author managed to get the information he needed when he asked the right question.	15)

Sores Duman is a normal 29-year-old. (0) _____ Later in the week he will see an action movie with his mate Piebe. (16) _____ It might take more time than usual for his friends to get ready for these activities. Piebe is 79 and Martey a sprightly 94. (17) _____ "No, I do similar things with friends my own age. I don't see the difference in age as an obstacle."

Mr Duman lives at the Humanitas care home in Deventer, in central Holland. His housemates' average age is over 85. (18) _____ They are part of a scheme started in 2012 that provides them with free housing in exchange for 30 hours per month of their time living as a "good neighbour". (19) _____

Both parties appear to benefit from the programme. (20) _____ He claims that living in a care home has not affected his university experience, and in a promotional video one resident calls the initiative very cosy. The home now has a waiting list, which it previously did not. And students are queuing up. (21) _____

Such initiatives could help combat loneliness, an increasing problem across the rich world. (22) _____ Loneliness is reckoned to have serious health consequences, and the problem may only get worse. It can be an especially painful experience for someone who is also socially isolated. (23) _____ Creating a space for the elderly to mingle with youngsters can lift spirits – and help cash-strapped millennials.

0)	C

CAN A COMPUTER FOOL YOU INTO THINKING IT IS HUMAN?

Robert Epstein was looking for love. As he recounted in the journal Scientific American Mind, he began a promising email exchange with a pretty, warm and friendly girl in Russia. Soon she confessed she was developing a crush on him. "I have very special feelings about you, a beautiful flower blossoming in my soul..."

It took a long while for Epstein to notice that Ivana never really responded directly to his questions. Suspicious, he eventually sent her a line of pure bang-on-the-keyboard gibberish. She responded by repeating sweet nothings about how much she liked him. At last, Epstein realised the truth: Ivana was a chatbot.

What makes the story surprising is not that a chatbot managed to trick a lonely middle-aged man. It is that the man who was tricked was one of the founders of a test of artificial conversation in which computers try to fool humans into thinking that they, too, are human. In other words, one of the world's top chatbot experts had spent two months writing love letters to a computer programme.

One of the first and most famous early chatbots, Eliza, would successfully imitate a human psychotherapist. It was programmed in the mid-1960s by Joseph Weizenbaum. If you typed, "my husband made me come here", Eliza might simply reply, "your husband made you come here." If you mentioned feeling angry, Eliza might ask, "do you think coming here will help you not to feel angry?" People did not care that Eliza was not human: they seemed pleased that someone would listen to them without judgement. Weizenbaum's secretary famously asked him to leave the room so that she could talk to Eliza in private.

Psychotherapists were fascinated. A contemporary article in a medical journal said that "several hundred patients an hour could be handled by a computer system." Supervising an army of bots, the human therapist would be far more efficient. And indeed, some therapies are now administered by chatbots, such as Woebot. There is no pretence that they are human.

Chatbots are now widely used in call centres, handling a growing number of complaints and enquiries. Babylon Health is a chatbot that quizzes people about their medical symptoms and decides whether they should be referred to a doctor.

Economists today argue that automation reshapes jobs rather than destroying them. Computers take over the routine tasks and humans supply the creativity and adaptability.

SLEEPYHEADS PREFER JUNK FOOD

A night with no sleep changes the brain (0) _____ determines how appetizing people find high-calorie foods, a new study finds. People who lost a night of sleep also lost much of their willpower to eat right. This connection could help explain (9) _____ people who don't regularly get a good night's sleep are more likely to be overweight.

Scientists recruited 23 adult volunteers to (10) _____ part in tests at a sleep lab on two separate nights. On night one, they were encouraged to sleep normally. On the other night, however, the scientists (11) _____ their recruits awake all night long. After each night in the lab, the volunteers reported how hungry they were. THE STORY BEHIND LINCOLN'S BEARD

Concerned that Lincoln's thin, worry-lined face was so severe it might scare off voters, 11-year-old Grace Bedell found a
0) solution: grow him a beard. On October 15, 1860, she wrote
0) a letter to the Republican nominee outlining her plan to help
25) him out win the coming presidential election. It reads in part:
26) "I have four brothers and two of them will vote for you and
27) even if you let your beard grow, I will get the rest of them to
28) vote for you. You would look like a great deal better as your
29) face is so thin. All the ladies like beards and they would rather
30) persuade their husbands to vote for you and after then you
31) would be President." Lincoln wrote back to Grace four days later,
32) making no promises. However, he began to growing his facial
33) hair shortly afterwards. He had a full beard when, on his own way
34) to his 1861 inauguration, he stopped near Westfield so he could
35) greet his young pen pal. Lincoln said her, "You see? I grew this beard for you." The beard has since become inseparable from the memory of the man.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After that, we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

TASK 1

- In this section, you will listen to some information about a dinosaur bone found in south-western France.
- Your task will be to write one word in each of the gaps below using the exact words that you hear in the recording.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.

TASK 2

- In this section you will hear a museum guide describing a famous painting called American Gothic by Grant Wood.
- Your task will be to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

✓ The museum guide says that the Grant Wood painting is the first stop on the tour. B

9. The house Grant Wood saw had been built in 1895.

10. Grant Wood thought the window and the house were a perfect match.

11. Grant Wood drew the house on an envelope straight away.

12. Museum-goers who think that the people in the picture are husband and wife are wrong.

13. The artist painted an exact likeness of his sister.

14. The local dentist was worse at posing than Wood's sister.

15. Art critics agree that the painting is a satire on the Midwest region of the US.

16. Grant Wood's painting was immediately praised and admired by local people.

17. In American popular art, there are more parodies of American Gothic than of Mona Lisa.

That is the end of TASK 2.

Fontos tudnivalók

Mindkét feladatot meg kell írni!
A pontozott sorokra kell írni!
Ügyeljen a megadott szószámra! Amennyiben a létrehozott szöveg jelentősen eltér (rövidebb, hosszabb) a megadott szóintervallumtól, az pontlevonással jár.

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

In the summer holidays you are travelling in rural England but on your way home you will spend a day in London. Your English friend Colin offered to spend the day with you and also sent you the descriptions of three programmes to choose from:

See a world-class exhibition at the Victoria & Albert Museum

What is it? A cathedral to culture, the V&A is a world-class museum championing the very best of decorative art and design.

Why go? The V&A houses one of the greatest collections of art, design, fashion and textiles on the planet. The permanent exhibits in this museum are fascinating, free to visit and include a mini pet cemetery.

Eat your way around Borough Market

What is it? One of the city's largest and oldest food markets. Popular with both tourists and locals, offering all sorts of gastronomic delights and mouth-watering free samples.

Why go? This mega market near London Bridge has a history that goes back to the thirteenth century, and it's livelier than ever: Borough Market is packed with artisan traders and it's also home to some of the best restaurants and bars in the city.

People-watch and party in Soho

What is it? A West End neighbourhood with a fascinating history, which now teems with a mix of party-goers, foodies, tourists, theatre fans and media people in addition to a few surviving colourful local characters.

Why go? Soho is home to some of London's best theatres, restaurants, bars, clubs and shops. The maze of streets, linked by narrow Dickensian alleyways, are always busy and full of life.

Write an email of 120-150 words to Colin, in which you

- tell him which programme you would like to choose,
- give your reasons,
- suggest another place/activity that could also be interesting to see/do in London.

Begin your email like this:

Task 2

You have read the following post on an internet forum called The Student Room:

My mom takes my phone away at night and it makes me really mad. Not only do I use it to wake up in the morning because I hate the sound of a beeping alarm clock, I sometimes need to text people and ask them homework questions after my mom has gone to bed. I'm not one of those people who have late night texting conversations, I love my sleep. And, if I want to go on Facebook or whatever before I go to bed, why shouldn't I?! I'm 16. I don't need her controlling my life in that way. She just doesn't seem to get that I'm not a child anymore. In less than two years I'll be off to uni, so I may be wrong but I'm pretty sure I'm old enough to have my phone at night.

She also wants to check my messages and control what apps I download. I mean, seriously? It's none of her business who I chat with and what pages I visit. Yesterday she said that if I don't want to show her my phone, I obviously have something to hide, so she went through all my messages. When I flipped out, she says she's just a parent worried about her kid, and that I shouldn't make such a big deal out of it. She doesn't seem to get how infuriating and humiliating this is for me. Advice anyone?

Claire

Write a comment of 200-250 words to Claire's post in which you tell her

- whether you think parents have the right to control their children's screen time,
- whether you think parents should have a say in what apps their children use,
- your personal experiences and ideas about a teenager's privacy issues,
- what you think she should do.

Begin your comment like this:

Claire,
