VOLUNTEERING

Volunteering is an opportunity to change lives, including your own. If you'd like to support a cause but can't afford to donate money, you can donate your time instead. So how do you go about it?

0) _____

When volunteering, you can pick what really interests you and who or what is most deserving of your time. Here are some ideas to get you started:

8) _____

Become a camp counsellor, or volunteer for an after-school sports program. Provide homework help in a specific subject or become a reading partner for students who struggle with reading.

9) _____

Serve Christmas dinner to the homeless, volunteer at your local food bank, or distribute toys to kids. Local charities also may be able to use your help then.

10) _____

Most shelters depend on volunteers to keep the cats and dogs happy and well exercised. And when you're walking rescued dogs, you get a workout too.

11) _____

Join a conservation group and count wildlife or plants. Take part in a local park clean-up day. You don't have to be an outdoors type — you could help out in a park office or education centre as well.

12) _____

Lots of us are close to people who have a medical problem. It can feel good to donate your time to an organization that raises money for research, delivers meals, or offers other help to people with an illness.

Volunteering gives you a place to be where you can have a good time, keep busy and make the world a better place.

METEORITE CRASH-LANDED IN A CANADIAN WOMAN'S BED WHILE SHE SLEPT

When Ruth Hamilton woke up on October 3 to the sound of her dog barking, followed shortly by an explosion and drywall pieces falling on her face, she was afraid there was a burglar in the house. But instead, she noticed a dark grey rock behind her pillows that matched the size of the hole in her ceiling.

The police officer who visited Ms Hamilton's home first suspected that a nearby building site might be responsible for the damage. But the construction workers made the officer think of another explanation. They had heard a loud noise and seen an explosion in the sky just before Ms Hamilton reported the incident. "The police officer came back in and said: 'Well, I think you have a meteorite in your bed,'" says Ms Hamilton.

Ms Hamilton shared the space-rock, which weighs about 1.3 kilograms, with researchers at the University of Western Ontario, which has a collection of meteorites, so they can study it further. "It's certainly a meteorite," says meteor physicist Peter Brown, member of the research team. "Everything about the story pointed to a meteorite fall, and the fact that the bright fireball had occurred basically right at the same time made it a pretty obvious case."

The researchers are asking local residents for videos that may have captured the fall of the fireball. They can use video to reconstruct the path that the meteorite followed from the asteroid belt to Earth.

Ms Hamilton considers herself lucky to be unharmed. "I didn't get hurt," she says. "I didn't even get a scratch. So, all I had to do is have a shower and mop the floor."

Because the meteorite landed on Ms Hamilton's property, it belongs to her, and she plans to keep it as a souvenir of the unusual night. Her grandchildren also think it's pretty cool.

0) Ruth Hamilton was woken up by pieces of wall falling on her bed.

13) The incident happened shortly after midnight.

14) Ruth Hamilton's home had been broken into before.

15) The construction workers did not notice anything strange.

16) Researchers are sure that the rock is a meteorite.

17) Residents will be paid a small sum of money for sharing videos that capture the fireball.

18) Ms Hamilton did not get injured when the space-rock hit her home.

19) Ms Hamilton has given the meteorite to her grandchildren as a souvenir.

DRONE DELIVERS BOOKS TO KIDS

Kids in the Montgomery County school district had a special way of getting books to read when the pandemic started: the books were (0) _____ . A drone is a small remote-controlled aircraft, like a toy-sized plane or helicopter.

Kelly Passek is a librarian at a local school. When schools closed because of the Covid-19 pandemic, she wanted to make sure students in her school district would still (20) _____ .

A company called Wing Aviation uses drones to (21) _____ from restaurants and stores in Ms Passek's town. She had used the drone service to have things delivered to her own home, and she thought it could (22) _____ .

The people at Wing agreed and the company began making deliveries. Students who (23) _____ could fill out a Google form to request a specific book, or ask Ms Passek to choose one for them.

Ms Passek received the requests, then got the books from the library, (24) _____ , and took them to Wing's shipping centre.

Wing (25) _____ , which flew to the delivery location, lowered the book on a cable, and released it when it was close to the ground.

The first book sent out this way – and maybe the first library book ever to be delivered by drone – was All Quiet on the Western Front, by Erich Maria Remarque. It was (26) _____ in the district.

The drones have a wingspan of about one metre, and weigh about 4.5 kilograms. They can carry packages that weigh up to 1.3 kilograms, so students were (27) _____ .

Students have now (28) _____ , but many are hoping to use the drone service in the future.

RENT A GOAT

It's hard to keep your backyard tidy and (0) _____ (health) without harming the Earth. Just consider the tools. Lawn mowers use fossil fuels, adding to the (1) _____ (pollute) of the atmosphere every time you push them across the grass.

That's why many are trying out a more (2) _____ (nature) form of lawn care and management: goats. According to Forbes, goat rentals are becoming a(n) (3) _____ (fashion) service for homeowners and farmers who want to get their land under control.

Goat rental businesses function very simply. Customers call in with the (4) _____ (describe) of their land — the size, the landscape, and any other important features. Then the goat rental service makes a(n) (5) _____ (offer). Once the price is settled, the two parties agree on a(n) (6) _____ (suit) date of service. On that day, the goats arrive. They graze the grass until the evening, then leave, and possibly return the next morning if the size of the job makes it necessary. When their work is done, customers are left with a freshly manicured lawn, achieved without burning any fossil fuel.

These (7) _____ (create) businesses can send 100 or more goats at a time. Goats offer obvious (8) _____ (environment) benefits, since they replace both mowers and chemical insect killers.

Ancient writers describe a fantastic series (0) _____ gardens constructed at the ancient city of Babylon in modern-day Iraq. It's not clear when these gardens (9) _____ built, but some writers were (10) _____ impressed that they called them a "wonder of the world". Around 250 B.C., Philo of Byzantium wrote that the Hanging Gardens had "plants grown at a height above ground level, and the roots are planted in an upper terrace rather (11) _____ in the earth."

So (12) _____ , archaeologists who have excavated Babylon have been unable to find the remains of the garden. WHERE PIGS SWIM FREE

For more than 30 years, I have photographed animals. It is important to me to portray animals as having their (0) _____ thoughts and personalities.

I heard about the swimming pigs from an Englishwoman, who told me that she was 300 feet offshore in the Bahamas when a pig smelled her pizza and swam out to ask (17) _____ a bite.

The pigs live on Big Major Cay, a tiny, uninhabited island with thick forests. About a dozen pigs live here, and (18) _____ are different stories about how that happened. Some say the pigs swam to the island after a shipwreck; (19) _____ say sailors left them here, planning to come back and eat them. Recently, they've become celebrities. The comedian Amy Schumer posted a photograph on Instagram (20) _____ showed her and her buddies hanging (21) _____ with one of the pigs on the island.

On the island, the pigs are very tolerant of tourists. They expect (22) _____ be fed. When I was there in February, a lot of people brought salad and bread. My guide, Dreko, said the pigs prefer anything (23) _____ salad, as they already have that on the island, but being pigs, they ate it all.

All in (24) _____ , it was more interesting to watch the people. They want this exciting pig experience and can become unbelievably and noisily happy, (25) _____ spite of the fact that they probably ate bacon and eggs for breakfast.

Task 1

You have found the following advertisement on a site called Language Exchange:

| | |
|---|---|
| Name | James |
| Age | 19 |
| Languages | Hungarian-English |
| City, State or Province | Santa Rosa, California |
| Country | US |
| Lessons | Conversation online |
| Description | Hello, I have been interested in Hungary for some years and also took language lessons a couple of years ago. Now I plan to apply for a teaching assistant job in a Hungarian language school and I have decided to dedicate this year to refreshing my speaking skills. Unfortunately, I have no-one here to practise with, so I'm looking for a native speaker of Hungarian who would be happy to have a chat with me online as many times a week as they can afford. In return, every second occasion we can switch to English so you can improve your colloquial conversational skills too. Reply below if interested. |

---

Write a reply of 80-100 words to James in which you

- say why you find his idea inspiring,
- say how many times and hours a week you are free for online chatting,
- ask him about his level of Hungarian and tell him about your level of English.

Begin your reply like this:
Hi James,

Task 2

You received the following email from your British friend, Jasmin, who is studying in Durham:

> I found a wonderful ad on the internet two weeks ago; someone was looking for a responsible, caring person to walk his dog for him once a day for an hour while he was at work. That's me, I thought, so I phoned him straight away. It turned out that the dog was an adult Rotweiler, Hansi, a rescue dog, and the guy, Phil, offered me £15 per hour (normally it's £8-10). I felt very lucky.
>
> Before the first walk I had a hasty word with Phil, who gave me the key to the back door and that was it. Hansi was also very friendly and seemed to like me immediately.
>
> The first walk, however, proved to be a disaster. After greeting me enthusiastically, Hansi stopped at the first grassy spot 150 m from the house and refused to move any further. I did everything I could, including begging him, but nothing worked. When I eventually gave up, he was absolutely delighted to be back home and licked my face affectionately.
>
> The situation hasn't improved ever since, although Hansi and I have become best friends. And anyway, if Hansi is happy with these super short walks and Phil is happy knowing that his dog is in good hands (and he certainly is), why should I bother? But I felt such a cheat when I found my weekly payment (£75!!!) on my bank account at the end of the first week.
>
> What do you think? Am I right to feel bad about it? What shall I do?

Write an email of 100-120 words to Jasmin in which you tell her

- whether you think she is really cheating,
- what she could do to improve the situation with the dog,
- whether she should discuss the problem with the dog's owner,
- who else she could turn to for help.

Begin your email like this:

Hi Jasmin,
