Fontos tudnivalók

- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

- In the following text about emotional eating, the first sentence of each paragraph has been removed.
- Your task is to match the sentences to the paragraphs.
- Write the letters of the sentences (A-I) next to the appropriate numbers (1-6).
- There are two extra sentences that you do not need.
- Write the letters in the white boxes as in the example *(0).

WHAT IS EMOTIONAL EATING?

0) _____ . They often seek comfort or distraction in food when they're stressed, sad, anxious, or bored. But emotional eating can be linked to positive feelings as well, like the celebration of a holiday feast.

1) _____ . Who hasn't suddenly found room for dessert after a filling dinner or eaten cookie after cookie while cramming for a big test? But when done a lot, emotional eating can cause weight gain or cycles of binge eating.

2) _____ . You may often feel even worse about eating the amount or type of food you did. It is important to be aware of the connection between eating and your feelings.

3) _____ . A child who gets candy after a big achievement may grow up using candy as a reward for a job well done. A kid who is given cookies as a way to stop crying may learn to link cookies with comfort.

4) _____ . But it is possible. It starts with understanding the differences between two types of hunger. Physical hunger means you're likely to stop eating when full and it doesn't cause feelings of guilt. Emotional hunger may cause specific cravings (e.g. for pizza or ice cream) and it can make you eat more than you normally would, which may result in feeling guilty afterwards.

5) _____ . For example, if you head to the kitchen after school each day, try to change the routine. Instead of looking for food, stop and ask yourself if you're really hungry. Check in to see which type of hunger is making you want to eat.

6) _____ . If not, take a few minutes to go over the things that have happened that day and acknowledge how they made you feel. If your eating is triggered by a specific situation or mood, find a replacement activity. There are better ways to deal with the feelings that make you turn to food.

0)	C

A) Managing emotional eating starts with breaking the automatic cycle.

B) We're all emotional eaters to some extent.

~~C) Emotional eating is when people use food to deal with feelings instead of to satisfy hunger~~.

D) Food restriction by parents often triggers a child's desire to eat more food.

E) The trouble with emotional eating is that after the pleasure of eating is gone, the feelings that cause it remain.

F) However, some people eat less in the face of strong emotions.

G) People tend to learn emotional eating patterns at an early age.

H) It's not easy to "unlearn" patterns of emotional eating.

I) If you find signs of physical hunger, choose a healthy snack.

Task 2

- Read this article about penguins' sleeping habits and then read the statements (7-14) following it.
- Mark a sentence A if it is true according to the article.
- Mark it B if it is false.
- Mark it C if there isn't enough information in the text to decide if the sentence is true or not.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).

PENGUINS TAKE THOUSANDS OF NAPS A DAY

Penguins are champion power nappers. Over the course of a single day, they fall asleep thousands of times, each time only for a few seconds, a new study has found. Although animals have a wide range of sleeping styles, penguins easily take the record for fragmented sleeping.

The science of sleep got its start in the early 1900s when researchers used scalp electrodes to discover that people produce slow brain waves when dozing. They found similar wave patterns in mice, pigeons and other captive animals. Over time, scientists discovered that every animal they studied spent some time each day unresponsive to their environment. Even jellyfish sleep despite their lack of a brain.

But how animals sleep varies. Brown bats remain asleep for 20 hours a day, whereas giraffes get by on less than two hours. Seals are able to shut down a single side of their brain: with the other still awake, they can continue swimming as they doze.

As technological devices have become smaller and more powerful, researchers have discovered that sleep patterns documented in animals in captivity are significantly different from those observed in the wild. In zoos, for example, sloths will sleep for almost 16 hours a day. But in a Panamanian rainforest, scientists observed the animals sleeping for less than 10.

In 2019, neuroscientist Paul-Antoine Libourel and his colleagues tracked sleeping animals in a remote environment: King George Island, 70 miles north of Antarctica, where several thousands of breeding pairs of chinstrap penguins gather in nesting colonies to raise their young. They found that the birds split their time between swimming in the ocean and staying at the nests to keep their eggs and chicks warm. While in the ocean, the birds barely slept, spending just three percent of their time resting on the surface of the sea. When the penguins returned to their nests, however, their brain waves slowed to a pattern that is typical for sleeping birds — but only for a few seconds. They woke up again, only to fall back asleep. The birds sped through this cycle 600 times in an hour.

Humans, too, can experience this sort of microsleep, though typically only after failing to get a good night's sleep. It can be dangerous, especially if we're nodding off at the wheel. But for chinstrap penguins, microsleep seems to be the norm.

0) In the animal kingdom, penguins fall asleep the most times during a day.

0)	A

7) Scientists found similar brain activity during sleep in both humans and certain animals in captivity.

8) Scientists can't explain why jellyfish can sleep despite not having a brain.

9) The size of an animal's brain determines the amount of time it sleeps a day.

10) Seals can only swim if their whole brain is awake.

11) The sleeping patterns of species change according to where they live.

12) On King George Island, a small colony of penguins were observed by neuroscientists.

13) It was during the time spent in their nests that the penguins were observed to fall asleep many times in a short period of time.

14) When it comes to humans, microsleep normally occurs when we are well-rested.

Task 3

- Read the following text about parks in London and then read the half sentences that follow the text.
- Your task is to match the half sentences based on the information in the text.
- Write the letters (A-K) in the white boxes next to the numbers (15-20) as in the example (0).
- Remember that there are three extra letters that you will not need.

LONDON'S BEST PARKS

With more than 3,000 parks and open spaces, London is one of the world's greenest cities. Here's our lowdown on London's best major parks.

Wild and undulating, Hampstead Heath makes a wonderful contrast to the more manicured London parks. It's a playground for picnickers, dog-walkers and nature-lovers. Take a dip in the ponds: the men's and ladies' ponds are open all year round, but be warned that even in the summer, the water is pretty frosty.

Crystal Palace Park – The Crystal Palace, which gave the park its name, may have burnt to the ground in 1936, but its landscaped grounds still house some pretty amazing features, including five massive dinosaur sculptures that lurk among the trees around a lake.

Dulwich Park is charming, peaceful and has a unique atmosphere. If you're up for something sporty, there are tennis courts, football pitches, and an outdoor gym. There's also table tennis, and if you're feeling particularly poetic, then you can enjoy a romantic stroll around a lake.

Greenwich Park – The oldest Royal Park provides an urban sanctuary for deer, foxes and over 70 bird species. Take a look at Queen Elizabeth's Oak. It may look like a mossy old lump of wood, but it's been in the park since the twelfth century. According to legend, Henry VIII once danced around it with Anne Boleyn.

London Fields – This vibrant hipster hangout is probably the coolest of London's green spots with its wildflower meadow in the spring and summer. Bring a picnic, not a disposable barbecue. This used to be one of the few open spaces in London where you could barbecue legally, but that's been changed recently due to cleaning costs.

Green Park – This green, triangle-shaped area was enclosed by Charles II as a hunting ground in 1668. Thankfully, it was opened to the public in 1826 and today you'll find lunching commuters and tourists lounging in the park's famous stripy deckchairs.

Hyde Park is one of the largest and maybe the most famous of London's Royal Parks with London's oldest boating lake. Catch a glimpse of the Victorian pet cemetery hidden in the park's north-west corner, where around 300 furry Londoners from the past rest in peace.

Task 4

- Read this article about the word of the year in 2023.
- Some parts of sentences have been left out from the text.
- Your task is to reconstruct the text by filling in the gaps (21-28) from the list (A-L) below.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).
- Remember that there are two extra letters that you do not need.

CAMBRIDGE DICTIONARY'S WORD OF THE YEAR IN 2023

Cambridge dictionary's word of the year for 2023 is "hallucinate" – (0) _____.

The original definition of the chosen word is to "seem to see, hear, feel, or smell" something that does not exist, usually because of "a health condition or (21) _____". It now has an additional meaning, relating to when artificial intelligence systems such as ChatGPT, which generates text that mimics human writing, "hallucinates" and (22) _____.

The word was chosen because the new meaning "gets to the heart of why people are talking about AI", according to a post on the dictionary site. Generative AI is a "powerful" but "far from perfect" tool, "one we're all still learning how (23) _____ – this means being aware of both its potential strengths and its current weaknesses."

"AI hallucinations remind us that humans still need (24) _____ to the use of these tools," continued the post. "Large language models (LLMs) are only as reliable as the information their algorithms learn from. Human expertise is arguably more important than ever, (25) _____ that large language models can be trained on."

Henry Shevlin, an AI ethicist at the University of Cambridge, said that it is striking that rather than choosing a computer-specific term like "bugs" to describe the mistakes that LLMs make, the dictionary team (26) _____. He said that this may be because "it's so easy to anthropomorphise these systems, treating them as if they had minds of their own."

The dictionary provides two example sentences of "hallucinate" relating to AI: "LLMs are notorious for hallucinating – (27) _____, often supported by fictitious citations" and "The latest version of the chatbot is greatly improved but it will still hallucinate facts."

It wasn't only Cambridge's decision (28) _____: according to Collins dictionary, the word of 2023 is "AI" itself.

0)	C

A) to interact with safely and effectively

B) generating completely false answers

~~C) a verb that gained an additional meaning this year~~

D) having taken a drug

E) decided on a "vivid psychological verb"

F) came as a surprise to online dictionary users

G) produces false information

H) to bring their critical thinking skills

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After that, we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

TASK 1

- In this section, you will listen to a story about an experiment a professor carried out in his university class.

- First, you will have some time to study the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.

✓ An American high school English teacher asked her students to write a letter to a ……famous…… ……author…….. .

9. In his letter, Kurt Vonnegut wrote that he didn't make …….…….….. …….…….….. any longer.

10. His most important message was that the students should …….…….….. any …….…….….. .

11. Students should not dance, act, sing or paint to get …….…….….. and …….…….……, but to experience becoming an adult.

12. He also encouraged them to do all sorts of crazy things, for example to ……... a …….…….... in their mashed potatoes.

13. Vonnegut also asked them to write a poem that consisted of …….…….….. …….…….….. and rhymes.

14. He told them not to show the poem to anyone, not even to their …… or …….…….….. or their English teacher.

15. Then, they should tear up their poem into small pieces, and throw them into widely separated ……...… …… .

16. By writing and then getting rid of their poems, they would not only learn a lot about themselves, but they would also make their ……..….. ……..….. .

That is the end of TASK 2.

TASK 3

- In this section, you will hear the story of a cat that disappeared from her home near the Rocky Mountains and was found in New York last week.
- Your task will be to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

✓ The cat named Willow disappeared from her home last Wednesday. B

17. All three of the Squires children still remember Willow. ☐

18. It is still not known how Willow ended up in New York. ☐

19. The Squireses have never given up hope that Willow will return home one day. ☐

20. A lot of people responded to the 'lost cat' posters the family had put out. ☐

21. The Squireses were informed that Willow had been found via email. ☐

22. Willow was found by animal rights activists. ☐

Fontos tudnivalók

Mindkét feladatot meg kell írni!
A pontozott sorokra kell írni!
Ügyeljen a megadott szószámra! Amennyiben a létrehozott szöveg jelentősen eltér (rövidebb, hosszabb) a megadott szóintervallumtól, az pontlevonással jár.

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

You have just started university and are thinking of joining a student club with your friend David. He sent you the following three descriptions of clubs he is already a member of.

"The Climate Society connects like-minded individuals, inspires and educates the next generation of climate leaders, take action towards ambitious emission reductions, and provides platforms for academic, artistic, and social engagement with climate change."

"Our aim at the University Dance Society is to offer a variety of dance classes. We welcome people of all levels of experience. For this term, the classes we aim to offer are Ballet, Contemporary Dance, Hip-Hop, Dance Fitness, Yoga, and Body Toning & Stretching."

"The Harry Potter Society is for people who are still waiting for their Hogwarts letters. We hold film screenings, arts and crafts nights, quizzes, fanfic sessions and much more. For when you're all Pottered-out, we have regular socials, including a weekly pub lunch. We're a friendly bunch, so why not come along and join us?"

Write an email of 120-150 words to your friend in which you

- thank him for the information and say what you think of student clubs in general,
- write about which of the three clubs you would most like to join and why,
- ask about membership fees and the frequency of meetings.

Begin your email like this:

Task 2

You have found the following post on the internet forum Trapped:

> As a child I used to enjoy fireworks on New Year's Eve or 4th July or even ones set off at parties in the neighbourhood. However, since we adopted a rescue labrador, Holly, I have come to dread all these fireworks seasons as she is petrified with fear by all sorts of loud and sudden noises, especially fireworks. To see her in this state of extreme stress for hours each time makes me really worry that one day she might get a heart attack.
>
> This experience made me start reading about the traumatizing effects fireworks have not only on pets but on wild animals including birds, too, and also on people with various conditions like autism. Eventually I decided to join an anti-fireworks action group in my hometown. So far our main activities have been signing petitions and spreading information on social media. These are small steps to raise awareness but at least I feel I've done something.
>
> Can you imagine my embarrassment when I received an invitation to my dearest cousin's wedding ceremony including the reception afterwards, where, according to his email, the main attraction will be the 'sensational' fireworks organised by my uncle, and guests are encouraged to bring their own fireworks to add to the fun. I really don't like the idea of missing this family event; however, I also feel that taking part in a fireworks session would mean betraying the goal I've set for myself.

Write a comment of 200-250 words to Aneka in which you give your opinion about

- fireworks as a form of celebration,
- Aneka's argument against them,
- joining an action group for a cause you find important,
- what she should do in this situation.

Begin like this:
