Task 1

- Read the following article about London markets and then read the half sentences that follow the text.
- Your task is to match the half sentences based on the information in the text.
- Write the letters (A-K) in the white boxes next to the numbers (1-6) as in the example (0).
- Remember that there are three extra letters that you will not need.

THE BEST LONDON MARKETS

Whatever you're looking for, you'll find it at the best markets in London.

Come with an empty stomach and discover a gourmet's paradise at Borough Market near London Bridge. Find stacks of fresh and organic produce, as well as condiments, baked treats and delicious street food. Regular three-hour Borough Market Food Tours led by knowledgeable experts explain the history of the area, while you tuck into delicious food and drink fresh from the market.

Located around the historic Market Building, Covent Garden Market features a range of stalls and specialty shops, as well as entertainment outside the market from opera singers to magicians. This central London shopping market is an architectural masterpiece including toy shops, perfume boutiques, restaurants and cafés.

Feeling peckish? Then take a stairway straight to foodie heaven at Market Hall Oxford Street, the UK's largest food hall filled with everything from sweets to savouries. Three floors of eager traders are ready to serve delicious bites seven days a week in the West End.

One person's junk is another's gem – and you will find plenty of both at this east London market spread across several streets. At Brick Lane Market, you can pore over second-hand furniture, vintage clothes, shoes and lots more. Sunday is the best day to visit, with Upmarket featuring more than 200 stalls.

Soak up the atmosphere at one of the oldest markets in London on Portobello Road. There has been a market here since the 1800s, offering a great variety of products. Although open every day except Sunday, the market is in full swing on Saturdays when there can be more than 1,500 stalls to browse.

Go bananas for Seven Dials Market, an ex-banana warehouse turned glass-roofed chillout spot full of delicious food on every corner. Head downstairs if you're in need of a bite of street food, or upstairs for elegant terrazzo countertop cafes.

Located beneath the vaulted arches of London Bridge, the foodie paradise of Maltby Street Market comes to life every weekend. There's a fantastic range of street food, from delicious Chinese dumplings at Gyoza Guys, to Amen Ethiopian Cuisine and La Pepia's Venezuelan street food.

HOW RAILROADS INSPIRED THE CREATION OF TIME ZONES

On 18 November, 1883, railroad companies in the United States and Canada (0) _____, leading to the ground-breaking concept of time zones around the world.

For millennia prior to this date, people around the world (7) _____, with midday determined by when the Sun was highest in the sky over that particular village or town. Mechanical clocks eventually (8) _____ in the Middle Ages. Towns would set their clocks by gauging the position of the Sun, leading every city to operate on a slightly different time. This method lasted well into the 1800s, when there were at least 144 different time zones in North America.

Since many people (9) _____ from their homes throughout history – generally as far as a horse, camel or wagon could carry them on land –, this form of timekeeping didn't cause much of a problem. That is, until the advent of the railroad.

In the mid-1800s, as trains became increasingly popular in the US and Canada, and railroads (10) _____, the need to create a more coordinated timekeeping system wasn't just an issue of efficiency but national safety. The existence of different local time zones (11) _____. At best, people might miss their train; at worst, trains were more likely to collide when using a single track.

In 1879, a Canadian rail engineer named Sir Sandford Fleming (12) _____ after missing a train: the creation of time zones. On 18 November, 1883, the US and Canadian railroad industries adopted Fleming's idea, but because of the sheer size of the North American continent, they (13) _____: Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific time – each of which remain relatively unchanged to this day.

In North America, local towns and cities, eager for the prosperity and opportunities brought by the railroad, (14) _____. The US federal government, however, was a bit slower and fully adopted these new time zones in only in 1918.

A) couldn’t agree on when to introduce the new system

B) started replacing sundials

~~C) transformed time in both countries~~

D) created major problems for the railroad

E) came up with a revolutionary idea

F) didn't travel especially long distances

G) were quick to adopt their continent's new time zones

H) measured time based on the position of the Sun

I) led to the accident killing more than1500 people on board

K) decided to create four major time zones

L) began carrying more passengers across the continent

Task 3

- Read this article about bothies and then read the statements (15-22) following it.
- Mark a sentence A if it is true according to the article.
- Mark it B if it is false.
- Mark it C if there isn't enough information in the text to decide if the sentence is true or not.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).

THE UK'S NETWORK OF FREE HIKING 'HOTELS'

Founded in 1965, the Mountain Bothy Association is a registered charity that maintains bothies: "simple shelters in remote country for the use of all who love wild and lonely places". The organisation manages more than a hundred bothies in Scotland, Wales and Northern England. The system is simple. Bothies are free to use and open to anyone. They can't be booked in advance, and groups of six or more and commercial groups are asked not to use them. As long as you respect other users, the bothy and its surroundings, you're welcome.

Every bothy is an adapted building with a previous life. Most are old shepherd's huts, sheds, farmsteads or workers' accommodation. In the early 20th century, hill farming declined and fewer and fewer people lived in remote locations, leaving many buildings behind. After World War Two, hiking and mountaineering as leisure pursuits dramatically increased in popularity and those exploring the outdoors began using these abandoned buildings as shelters.

Keeping the buildings habitable is all done by volunteers; however, bothies are by no means luxurious. You won't find electricity or running water and will be lucky to have a long-drop toilet. Most will have a stove, but there's no guarantee a supply of fuel will be there – not to mention any kitchenware. You should pack as if you're camping, including a tent in case the bothy is overcrowded or you don't fancy the company.

The company you find in bothies, and the fact that it's completely unpredictable, is one of their unique attractions, according to hikers. In a world where everything is bookable and controllable, you just have to go and turn up, and you could have it all to yourself or you could meet some incredible people and connect with them.

In 2009, the locations of the bothies were shared online by the association so that more hikers can find them, which wasn't a unanimously popular move. Part of the hikers' concern was that the people might begin using these spaces as places to party instead of using them for a shelter while enjoying outdoor pursuits.

0) The network of bothies is unique to the United Kingdom.

15) Travel agencies are welcome to use bothies as accommodation for their clients.

16) Bothies used to have different functions before they provided shelter for hikers.

17) In the early 20th century, many houses in remote areas were abandoned.

18) Maintenance work in the bothies is done twice a month.

19) When staying in bothies, hikers should provide kitchen utensils for themselves.

20) Hikers can never know who to expect to share a bothy with.

21) Hikers are advised to take a tent because there might be too many people in the bothy.

22) Overseas hikers welcomed the sharing of the bothies' locations.

- Read this article about 'misokinesia', a phenomenon also called 'the hatred of movements'.
- Some sentences have been left out from the text.
- Your task is to reconstruct the text by filling in the gaps (23-29) from the list (A-K) below.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).
- Remember that there are two extra letters that you do not need.

'MISOKINESIA' MAY AFFECT 1 IN 3 PEOPLE, RESEARCH SHOWS

Misokinesia is the reduced tolerance of others' repetitive bodily movements. Misokinesia sufferers can have an intense biological and emotional reaction to other people tapping their fingers, clicking a pen or twiddling their hair. (0) _____

The severity of people's reaction to irritating movements varies. (23) _____ Others, however, may get a very strong emotional reaction – anger, panic or distress -and just can't filter them out.

One common way people try to manage the condition is by avoiding looking at fidgeting or by distracting themselves. (24) _____ A lot of sufferers feel ashamed that they get such strong reactions, which can be a problem in itself, because suppressing your emotions can intensify them and make them worse.

Misokinesia sufferers often report some overlap with the sound-sensitivity of misophonia. (25) _____ Dr Jane Gregory, a clinical psychologist, who has been studying both misokinesia and misophonia, told the BBC that the two go alongside each other frequently. (26) _____ However, misophonia is a more recognized disorder. Obviously, people have also been experiencing misokinesia for a long time but just didn't have a name for it.

(27) _____ Across a series of experiments involving over 4,100 participants, researchers concluded that one in three people might be affected by misokinesia, which causes them intense feelings of rage and disgust. (28) _____ This explains a lot about why teenagers who twirl their hair or pick their nails annoy the rest of us.

The findings thus confirm that a large segment of the general population may have a visual-social sensitivity that has received little formal recognition so far. (29) _____ Misokinesia could explain why open office plans often do not work out well.

0)	C

A) She says both conditions are surprisingly common, but misokinesia had been little studied by scientists until recent years.

B) To their surprise, they found no behaviour difference between the groups.

~~C) Other common triggers are leg and foot movements, for instance, jiggling thighs or shuffling shoes.~~

D) Some people might get rather annoyed by fidgeting or repetitive movements, but it doesn't impact their day-to-day life massively.

E) Others may withdraw and try to avoid people entirely.

F) These nerve cells activate when we move but they also activate when we see others move.

G) This means an intense dislike of other people's noises, such as heavy breathing or loud eating.

H) The reality that one of three people can't stand fidgeting is worth considering when designing business buildings and public venues.

I) A recent Canadian study suggests that this unusual phenomenon is much more common than we realized.

K) Moreover, they found that symptoms of misokinesia intensified in adults.

WHY DO WE CARVE PUMPKINS AT HALLOWEEN?

The jack-o'-lantern has a long history with Halloween, (0) _____ our favorite demonic faces haven't always been cut out of pumpkins.

Their origin (10) _____ an Irish myth about Stingy Jack, who tricked the Devil for his own monetary gain. When Jack died, God (11) _____ him into heaven, and the Devil didn't let him into hell, (12) _____ Jack was sentenced to wander the earth for eternity. In Ireland, people started to carve demonic faces out of turnips to frighten away Jack's wandering soul. (13) _____ Irish immigrants moved to the U.S., they began making jack-o'-lanterns from pumpkins.

But how did jack-o'-lanterns become associated with Halloween? Halloween is based on the Celtic festival Samhain, a celebration in ancient Britain and Ireland (14) _____ marked the end of summer and the beginning of the new year on November 1. It was believed that during Samhain the souls of those who had died that year traveled to the otherworld and that other souls (15) _____ to visit their homes.

In the 8th century CE, the Roman Catholic Church moved All Saints' Day, a day (16) _____ the church's saints, to November 1. This meant that All Hallows' Eve (or Halloween) fell on October 31. Traditions from Samhain remained, such as (17) _____ disguises to hide yourself from the souls wandering around your home. The folklore about Stingy Jack was quickly incorporated into Halloween, and we've been carving pumpkins — or turnips — ever since.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After that, we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

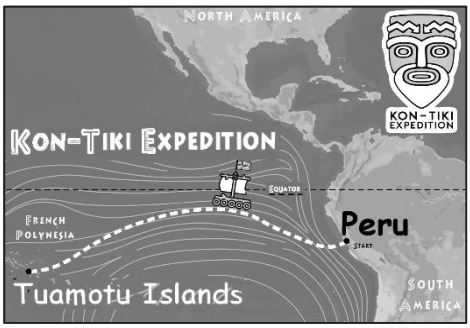

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

That is the end of TASK 2.

TASK 3

- In this section, you will hear about a moving painting by the British painter, Edwin Henry Landseer.
- Your task will be to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to study the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

✓ The Victoria and Albert Museum is the largest museum in London. C

Task 1

You have always wanted to visit a Caribbean island and you have found the following advertisement. Since you are an animal lover, you think that volunteering in a sanctuary might be a good opportunity to stay on the island of Bonaire free:

Donkey Sanctuary Bonaire
We are looking for volunteers!

Do you love animals, are you not afraid of getting dirty and sweaty? You may want to help us as a volunteer! We are a family-run sanctuary providing a protected life for sick, injured and orphaned donkeys.

You are expected to:

- be between 17 and 50 years old (fit & in good health)
- come and help us for at least 6 weeks, because it takes time to settle in and to let the donkeys get used to you
- help out 5 days a week, from 7:30 AM to 5:00 PM
- speak English

You do not need to have any experience in animal care, but you should like donkeys and be willing to learn.

We offer you:

- a choice of jobs: you can help to take care of the donkeys AND/OR receive tourists in the tourist center and lead guided tours in the donkey park
- free accommodation in simple but fully equipped houses in the middle of the site
- the possibility to come in pairs, if you have a friend who also wants to work as a volunteer
- insurance for your full stay and half board free on weekdays

Are you interested and would you like to know more?
Please contact Ed Koopman, staff officer: info@donkeysanctuary.com

Write an email of 120-150 words to Mr. Koopman in which you

- introduce yourself and say which type of job (animal care, tourist guide or both) you are interested in and why,
- specify how long you would like to stay and which months suit you best,
- ask three questions about any details of this opportunity you are interested in.

Begin your email like this:

Task 2

You have received the following email from your friend Karl.

Hi,

I haven't heard from you in a while, and I've found myself in a bit of a situation I would appreciate your opinion on.

You know we've got our Geography competition coming up and as part of it, I have to hand in an assignment about a chosen topic – volcanoes, yay! – that I'm supposed to write all on my own, do the research, summarise my findings, etc. You know me, I'm a procrastinator, and as you can imagine, I haven't even started working on it yet. Yesterday, we had a big family lunch on my grandma's birthday, where I told everyone what I was supposed to be working on, and to my surprise, my cousin Ove told me he had written a paper on the same topic in the previous semester at university. He offered to send it over to me, suggested that I should change a few things – including the name of the author, of course - and hand it in.

The deadline is coming up, and I'm starting to panic. I won't be able to do the research properly before then anyway, so I'm leaning towards accepting it. It's a university paper, after all, how cool would it be to use some parts of it... or maybe the whole thing? No one would find out, I'm sure, and everyone would do the same if they had the chance – or have chat GPT write their essay in the first place. What do you say? Is it cheating if I'm doing it with my cousin's consent?

Karl

Write an email of 200-250 words to Karl in which you write about

- whether you consider using his cousin's paper cheating in the competition,
- whether it is possible to have fair competitions in the era of the Internet and AI,
- what kind of help you think it is acceptable to use in situations like this,
- what you would do if you were in his shoes.
