COUPLE SETS RECORD AS OLDEST PAIR TO GET MARRIED

When Marjorie Fiterman and Bernie Littman met in their 90s, they had already lived long, full lives and neither of them thought they'd fall in love or end up married again. But last May, the two became the world's oldest married couple, with a combined age of over 202 years.

Ms. Fiterman is 102 years old, and Mr. Littman is 100. He was an engineer, and she was a teacher. Each of them had spent more than 60 years in their first marriages, but after their partners died, they both moved to the same retirement home in Philadelphia. They met at a costume party and quickly became friends because they had several things in common. They both liked acting in plays at the retirement home, enjoyed sharing meals together and they'd both attended the University of Pennsylvania at the same time, though they didn't meet each other then.

Mr. Littman will always have an easy way to remember when they had their first date – it was the same day that one of his great-granddaughters was born. His family was happy that he'd found someone he fell in love with. Although the couple dated for nine years, the family never thought that the two might want to get married.

The wedding ceremony took place at the retirement home where they live. Three generations of Mr. Littman's family were there with the couple: his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. On the day they got married, the couple's ages added up to 202 years and 271 days. That broke the Guinness world record for the oldest couple to get married.

They say their secret is that they keep each other young.

0) Mr. Littman's first marriage ended with a divorce.

24) Ms. Fiterman and Mr. Littman had lived in different states before they moved to the retirement home in Philadelphia.

25) Ms. Fiterman and Mr. Littman remembered being in touch during their university years.

26) The couple had their first date outside the retirement home.

27) Mr. Littman's family were pleased to find out about the old man's relationship.

28) Mr. Littman's decision to get married surprised his family.

29) Mr. Littman had more children than Ms. Fiterman.

30) The couple were awarded the Guinness world record because Mr. Littman was the oldest man ever to get married.

- Use the words in brackets to form the words that fit in the gaps (1-9).
- Then write the appropriate form of these words on the dotted lines after the text.

NEW YEAR'S EVE TRADITIONS

To end things on a (0) _____ (slight) absurd (and rather unsafe) note, we have Johannesburg, South Africa, where locals celebrate the new year by (1) _____ (throw) old household items (furniture, gadgets, glass etc.) out the window. As you'd expect, this tradition results in several serious (2) _____ (injure) each year, but the local government is working to ensure that New Year's Eve celebrations are safe – even if the age-old (3) _____ (warn), 'Watch out below!' still echoes through the streets.

The following tradition is for (4) _____ (love) of travelling. Many Latin Americans head to the streets with their suitcases in hand as soon as the new year begins. According to this tradition, those who take their suitcases for a walk at midnight will be (5) _____ (reward) with trips, vacations, and adventures in the coming 12 months. Some people believe that the longer the walk, the (6) _____ (far) they'll travel.

For some people in Siberia, a (7) _____ (type) New-Year's-Eve party isn't enough; they need the thrill and chill. To celebrate the (8) _____ (begin) of a new year, some people participate in the annual 'jump into a (9) _____ (freeze) lake and plant a Christmas tree at the bottom' tradition. The divers then pass the champagne and dance around the tree before coming back up to the surface.

HOW TO TAKE NOTES

These days (0) _____ people can type faster than they can write by hand, particularly (10) _____ they've grown up using laptops. This is an extremely useful skill and allows you to take notes quickly and easily, (11) _____ must certainly be a good thing.

Maybe not. In an experiment, university students were given TED talks to watch and were told to take notes. Half were given laptops and half took notes with a pen and paper. The students using a keyboard were more likely to type the lecturers' words word by word, while the students writing more slowly by hand had no (12) _____ to concentrate on the information to allow them to summarise.

Afterwards, the students were tested on the content of the lecture. When it came to remembering facts, it didn't matter which method of note-taking they used, but when (13) _____ asked to explain the concepts covered in the lecture, the students who took notes by hand did better.

When the students (14) _____ allowed to revise from their notes before being tested a week later, the pen-and-paper group still did better. The reason (15) _____ when using a pen and paper, you process the information more deeply (16) _____ you can't possibly write it all down. So it helps you to both understand it and remember it later on.

Task 1

As a visiting student in Sunningdale England, you took part in an optional online course on English literature and you had to write an essay on Charlotte Brontë's Jane Eyre. Your English teacher at school, Carol Bennett lent you an old edition of the book with her handwritten notes in it. The term finished two weeks ago and you were packing for holiday when you found the book on your desk and realised that you had forgotten to return it to Ms Bennett.

Write an email of 80-100 words to Ms Bennett in which you

- say thank you for the book and say how her notes were helpful,
- apologise for the delay,
- offer two ways of returning the book.

Begin your email like this:

Task 2

You received the following email from your American friend, Cynthia:

My boyfriend Tim's mother is very fussy about food and before every holiday she spends long days planning, shopping for and preparing the festive meal, particularly Thanksgiving dinner! This one being the third Thanksgiving Tim and I will spend together, they probably thought that I could be regarded as a family member so I was invited for the family dinner.

As I'm not particularly interested in cooking (understatement), Tim and I never talked about the details of these family meals, so imagine my horror last week, when he told me that according to a family tradition, his mother would ask all the females in the family (btw why the females??? in my family my father is the best cook) to send "samples" of the desserts they plan to bring to the celebration so that she can test if they are good enough to make it to the "festive menu". His mother hoped that I would also take the challenge, he added with a smile.

As you know very well, I've never prepared a dessert more complicated than a fruit salad but that has never been a problem (not with Tim either) and I don't feel like making an effort to give a false impression. On the contrary: the more I think about it the more surreal this so-called family tradition seems to me and I'd like to back out somehow. But how? Any ideas???

Write an email of 100-120 words to Cynthia in which you tell her what you think of

- the family tradition of testing dessert-samples,
- the fact that Cynthia is not very good at cooking,
- her feelings about the situation,
- what she should do now.
