Fontos tudnivalók

- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

- In this article about a new food source made with insects some parts of sentences have been left out.
- Your task is to reconstruct the text by filling in the gaps (1-9) from the list (A-M) below.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).
- Remember that there are two extra phrases that you do not need.

FINLAND BAKER LAUNCHES BREAD MADE FROM CRICKETS

Finnish bakery and food service company Fazer launched on Thursday what it said (0) _____ to be offered to consumers in stores. The bread, (1) _____ as well as wheat flour and seeds, contains more protein than normal wheat bread. Each loaf contains about 70 crickets and costs €3.99, (2) _____ for a regular wheat loaf.

"It offers consumers a good protein source and also (3) _____ ," said Juhani Sibakov, head of innovation at Fazer Bakeries.

The demand to find more food sources and a desire to treat animals more humanely (4) _____ in several Western countries. In November, Finland joined five other European countries – Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium, Austria and Denmark – in allowing insects (5) _____ .

Sibakov said Fazer had developed the bread since last summer. It had to wait for a new law (6) _____ . "I don't taste the difference ... It tastes like bread," said Sara Koivisto, a student from Helsinki after trying the new product.

Due to a limited supply of crickets, the insect-bread (7) _____ located in Helsinki region hypermarkets, but the company plans to offer it in all 47 of its stores by next year. The company buys its cricket flour from the Netherlands, but said it was also looking for local suppliers. Fazer, a family business with sales of about €1.6 billion last year, (8) _____ .

Insect-eating, or entomophagy, (9) _____ . The United Nations estimated last year that at least 2 billion people eat insects and more than 1,900 species have been used for food. In Western countries, edible bugs are becoming popular in niche markets, particularly among those seeking a gluten-free diet or wanting to protect the environment because farming insects uses less land, water and feed than animal husbandry.

0)	C

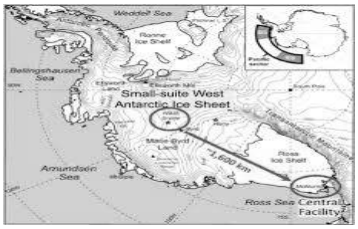

A) gives them an easy way to familiarize themselves with insect-based food

ANTARTICA GIVES UP ITS SECRETS

Scientists find new volcanoes beneath vast ice sheet

Scientists have uncovered the largest volcanic region on Earth − two kilometres below the surface of the vast ice sheet that covers west Antarctica.

The project, by Edinburgh University researchers, has revealed almost 100 volcanoes − with the highest ones as tall as Mount Eiger, which towers almost 4,000 metres above Switzerland. The project leader, glacier expert Robert Bingham says this huge region is likely to have more volcanoes than east Africa's volcanic ridge, currently considered the densest concentration of volcanoes in the world.

The big questions are: How active are these volcanoes? And how many lie below the ice? This second question was originally asked by the team's youngest member, Van Wyk de Vries, an undergraduate at the university's school of geosciences and a self-confessed volcano fanatic. He set up the project with the help of Bingham. In the study they analysed measurements made by previous surveys which involved the use of radar, carried by planes or land vehicles, to survey strips of the west Antarctic ice.

The results were then compared with satellite and database records and geological information from other surveys. After the team had put together the results, it reported a staggering 91 previously unknown volcanoes, adding to the 47 others that had been discovered over the previous century of exploring the region. "We were amazed," Bingham said. "We had not expected to find anything like that number. We also suspect there are even more on the bed of the sea."

The discovery is particularly important because the activity of these volcanoes could have crucial implications for the rest of the planet. "If one of these volcanoes were to erupt, it could further destabilise some of West Antarctica's ice sheets, already affected by global warming. Meltwater flowing into the Antarctic ocean could provoke sea level rises intensifying those that are already affecting our oceans," said Bingham.

0)	New volcanoes have been discovered in west Antarctica.	0)	A
10)	Mount Eiger is one of the highest peaks in Switzerland.	10)
11)	Africa's volcanic ridge probably has fewer volcanoes than Antarctica.	11)
12)	One of the researchers has not yet finished his university studies.	12)
13)	In this study Bingham and his team used radar to survey the area.	13)
14)	The success of the research has justified its high costs.	14)
15)	The team are convinced there are even more volcanoes in this area.	15)

Task 3

- Read this article about quotes and misquotes and then read the gapped summary.
- Your task is to complete the summary by filling in the gaps (18-24) with one or two words or numbers according to the information in the text.
- Write your answers on the dotted lines.
- An example (0) has been given for you.

LET'S SAVE MAYA ANGELOU FROM FAKE QUOTES

"A bird doesn't sing because it has an answer, it sings because it has a song."

A thought-provoking sentiment, I'm sure you'd agree. You might even be tempted to quote it. That impulse certainly struck the US postal service, who in 2015 put it out on a stamp bearing the face of Maya Angelou, the world-famous writer, professor, former dancer, calypso singer, filmmaker and civil rights activist, who died the previous year.

The only problem? She didn't write it.

Dr Maya Angelou was chosen as an official poet by the UN. Her seven memoirs have sold millions of copies around the world. She is a cultural icon − and among the world's most misquoted women.

The US postal service defended the mistake by saying the quote was "associated" with Angelou, and that she used it in a 2013 interview. It could also have pointed the finger at the then President Barack Obama, who also attributed the line to Angelou while handing out the 2013 National Medal of Arts.

The phrase was traced to a children's author named Joan Walsh Anglund, and her 1967 book, A Cup of Sun. Anglund was kind, saying: "I love Angelou's books, of course. I think it easily happens sometimes that people hear something, and it goes into their subconscious without them realising it."

But not everyone feels able to shrug off such mistakes. For some, fighting misquotes becomes almost a life's work. Gregory Sullivan, who runs the Quote Investigator (QI) website, is one such figure.

"Some of the massive quotation websites are filled with misinformation," he told the BBC. "These sites make the problem worse because many people incorrectly assume that large, professional-looking websites must contain valid data. The mission of QI is to provide information that is current, thorough, and very carefully documented."

Sullivan writes with a pseudonym under which he wrote the book Hemingway Didn't Say That: The Truth Behind Familiar Quotations.

So why do people keep pinning quotes on Maya Angelou? Basically, because the lines she did write were so good. Her quotability makes her a magnet for misquotation. Got a wise and compassionate line with no recorded owner? Just say it was Maya Angelou, the logic runs. Unless it's too spiritual, in which case try Gandhi or Mother Theresa. Or too sarcastic, when the obvious candidates are Oscar Wilde, Mark Twain or Winston Churchill. All eminently quotable men and women − and too dead to disclaim the words they never said.

Summary

A 2015 stamp had Maya Angelou's picture on it and a sentence that the (0) _____ thought was by her. She is very popular and many people read her books, yet she is often (18) _____ . Strangely enough, this even happened at an award-giving ceremony in the US in (19) _____ . The sentence "A bird doesn't sing because it has an answer, it sings because it has a song" actually first appeared in a(n) (20) _____ , but the (21) _____ didn't sound too upset about the whole thing.

Anyone wanting to trace a quote to its genuine source can consult (22) _____ , a website that promises to give accurate data. The man behind it, (23) _____ , is determined to correct misinformation spread by quotation websites. Apart from Maya Angelou, people like Mother Theresa or Winston Churchill, among others, are frequently misquoted, too; the (24) _____ one often credited with quite biting remarks.

Task 4

- Read this article about how mechanical typewriters are coming back into fashion and then read the sentences that follow the text.
- For each number (25-30) choose the option (A-D) that best corresponds to the text.
- Write the letters in the white boxes next to the numbers as in the example (0).

TYPEWRITER'S PROMISE OF A SIMPLER LIFE

Like-the clip-clop of horses' hooves on city streets or the crackle when a vinyl LP reaches the end, it is a sound that almost but never quite vanished. Now the clatter of typewriter keys has become the latest echo from the pre-digital world to be heard again.

The price of vintage manual typewriters has increased dramatically as authors, poets, lovers and even fed-up parents discover the delights of "slow writing". For most it is less about nostalgia and more about the need to escape the "noise" of email, social media and the internet.

The typewriter revolution began in the United States but has spread to Britain, where dozens of old machines are being restored every week.

Repairmen are being persuaded to come out of retirement to help to feed demand from a generation that never heard the ping of a typewriter bell. Tom Knowles, 59, did his apprenticeship in typewriter repair over 40 years ago. He has never been so busy supplying spare parts and repairing vintage Olivettis.

"People imagine my customers must be over 70 and can't get on with computers, but the reality is that most of them are under 30. A generation has suddenly discovered manual typewriters and thinks they are very cool," he said.

The typewriter's best known enthusiast is the actor Tom Hanks, who has a collection of more than a hundred. He has just finished a collection of short stories called Uncommon Type, each one featuring a different typewriter.

Mr Knowles said that people had gone back to manual typewriters because they found computers and smartphones, with their multiple functions, too distracting. "A manual typewriter is a single purpose machine, it does nothing else. Because it doesn't have a delete or a correction key it concentrates your mind more on what you're writing."

Philip Chapman, from Wiltshire, sells about 500 machines a year through his website at up to £350 each. Mr Chapman said: "We sell a lot to creative writers."

They also sell to parents who want to get their child away from their smartphone or tablet.

"There are boys, particularly, who are not interested in creative writing until you put a mechanical typewriter in front of them," Mr Chapman said. "Suddenly they go 'wow' and the next moment they are writing."

0) A) Horses' hooves and vinyl LPs produce rather similar sounds.
B) LPs are a thing of the past; people just don't listen to them.
C) Typewriters have made a comeback on both sides of the Atlantic.
D) Some people love listening to the clatter of typewriter keys.

0)	C

25) A) "Slow writing" fans handwrite or use manual typewriters.
B) Manual typewriters cost more than they used to.
C) Parents are fed up with the noise computers make.
D) Most people feel nostalgic about the pre-digital world.

25)

26) A) The US was first to rediscover manual typewriters.
B) Manual typewriters were redesigned in the US.
C) Tom Knowles' apprenticeship took a long time.
D) It is difficult to get spare parts for typewriters.

26)

27) A) It is mostly old-age pensioners who buy mechanical typewriters.
B) Older and younger people are equally enthusiastic about mechanical typewriters.
C) It is the younger generations who find mechanical typewriters attractive.
D) Computer literate people are not interested in mechanical typewriters.

27)

28) A) The actor Tom Hanks was the first to show an interest in typewriters.
B) Tom Hanks always uses a different typewriter when he writes.
C) Tom Hanks' new book contains a hundred short stories.
D) A typewriter plays a part in each of Tom Hanks' stories.

28)

29) A) People get easily distracted when using a manual typewriter.
B) A typewriter makes it easier to concentrate on your thoughts.
C) The biggest problem with typewriters is that mistakes are not easy to correct.
D) Mr Knowles believes typewriters will never go out of fashion.

29)

30) A) Typewriters can have a surprising effect on boys.
B) Some boys cannot be motivated to learn to type.
C) Parents have started using manual typewriters.
D) Mr Chapman advises people to buy typewriters.

ORIGINS OF BIRTHDAYS

The celebration of the anniversary of one's birth is a phenomenon of modern (0) _____ (industry) society. It is connected to the (9) _____ (rise) of a scientific way of thinking and to new attitudes about children and childhood.

The perfection of the calendar by the Egyptians and Mesopotamians (10) _____ (able) people to calculate exact birth dates, but ancient and classical cultures rarely celebrated birthdays, except for those of (11) _____ (royal). By the mid-nineteenth century, the official collection of demographic data and the recording of birth and baptismal dates in family bibles made more ordinary people identify their birthday.

New attitudes about the worth and special qualities of children helped to transform birthdays into special occasions in the late nineteenth century. By the 1870s, (12) _____ (wealth) families were holding children's birthday parties. Soon, parties and cakes became popular among rural and working-class families as well. Customs such as (13) _____ (wish) for something before blowing out the candles of the birthday cake (14) _____ (spread) fast too.

As the twentieth century progressed, commercial interests (15) _____ (increase) responded to the new (16) _____ (popular) of birthday celebrations, especially for children. Birthday cards were adapted from the Christmas and greeting cards of the nineteenth century. Decorations, hats, party favors, and gift wrap became birthday essentials, and "Happy Birthday to You" became the most commonly (17) _____ (perform) song in the English language. For children, their birthday remains one of the most important celebrations of the year and shows their special status in the family.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After that, we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

TASK 2

- In this section you will hear the story of how the umbrella arrived in Britain.
- Your task will be to decide whether the following statements are true, false or we do not know because the text does not say, and write the appropriate letter in the boxes on the right. Write A if the statement is true, write B if the statement is false, and write C if the text does not say.
- First, you will have some time to look at the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.
- A = TRUE B = FALSE C = THE TEXT DOES NOT SAY

✓ Jonas Hanway started to carry an umbrella in London in the middle of the 18th century. A

10. Everyone found Hanway with his umbrella funny and laughed at him. ☐

11. Hanway wanted to demonstrate that carrying an umbrella wasn't unmanly at all. ☐

12. One of the reasons why umbrellas had a bad reputation in England was that they were popular in France. ☐

13. Hansom cabs were drawn by horses, whereas sedan chairs were carried by porters. ☐

14. Both hansom cabs and sedan chairs protected passengers from the rain. ☐

15. Hansom cabs were more popular among Londoners than sedan chairs. ☐

16. Hanway got so angry at the insults that he threw rubbish at the coach drivers. ☐

17. When a coach driver tried to run Hanway over, he didn't fight back. ☐

That is the end of Task 2.

Task 1
You are an exchange student in Dublin, Ireland. You have decided to do a course on Irish history. Here is the description of the course you have found:

Trinity College Dublin

Irish Lives in War and Revolution: Exploring Ireland's History 1912-1923

Explore the lives of men, women and children living through war and revolution and social changes that made modern Ireland.

This five-week course looks beyond the familiar names and the famous faces - the traditional histories can tell us about them. Instead, it explores how the events that shaped the nature of modern Ireland - the Great War, the Easter Rising, the Irish war of independence and civil war - were experienced by the people who lived through them or in spite of them.

Through videos, assignments and discussions, through innovative approaches, this course introduces you to the history of Ireland in one of its most tumultuous periods.

To register email Dr Ciaran Brady c.brady@trinity.com

Write an email of 120-150 words to Dr Brady in which you

- introduce yourself and explain why you would like to do the course,
- ask about the frequency of the classes and access to a coursebook or other teaching material,
- say what other courses (at least one) connected to Ireland you would be interested in.

Begin your email like this:

Dear Dr Brady,

Task 2

You have found the following post on an internet forum called Jobs and Careers:

Kathy 18

Schools let us down

I want to share with you my doubts about whether going to college is the best option for any of us no matter how bright we are. Provided that we want to be successful in life, a winner, if you like.

My sister has been through college and I know how tough it is. Courses, tests and assignments! But is it worth all the time and effort? The truth is that a lot of college graduates still struggle after graduation. They can't find jobs and have lots of debt. They realise (way too late) that schools and colleges only train you to be in the poor groups: Employee and Small Business. You will never get rich here! Why? First, the harder you work, the more money the government is going to take from you through tax. Second, your income is low. What schools and colleges don't teach you is how to get into in the rich groups: Big Business and Investor. Most people in the world get stuck in the poor groups and they don't know how to step forward.

As I see it the reason for this lies in the fact that schools and colleges don't equip you with winning survival techniques, practical knowledge and the skill to upgrade yourself. I wonder if you agree with me and if you have any ideas how schools and colleges should change their ways to provide us with the skills we really need in life to be successful.

Write a comment of 200-250 words to Kathy's post in which you tell her

- how far you agree with her opinion about going to college,
- if your idea of success is the same as hers,
- whether you feel you have been sufficiently prepared for real life at school,
- whether/how schools should change what they teach and how they do it to provide more useful skills.
