Fontos tudnivalók

- Az utasításokat pontosan kell követni. Csak az utasításban megadott helyre beírt megoldás fogadható el.
- Mindig csak egy megoldást szabad beírni.
- A betűjelek legyenek jól olvashatóak, az esetleges javítások pedig egyértelműek.
- A megadott szószámot nem szabad túllépni. Az összevont alakok egy szónak számítanak (pl. "it's" egy szó, "it is" két szó).

A feladatlapban nem jelölt források a javítási-értékelési útmutatóban szerepelnek.

Task 1

- Read the following answers from the website of the National Animal Welfare Trust (NAWT). The questions have been removed.
- Your task is to write the letters of the questions (A-M) next to the appropriate numbers (1- 8).
- There are three extra questions that you do not need.
- Write the letters in the white boxes as in the example (0).

NATIONAL ANIMAL WELFARE TRUST — FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Our FAQs answer the most commonly asked questions from adopting a pet to volunteering.

0) _____
Yes, but in return for your payment you receive a pet that has been vet-checked, vaccinated, and microchipped.

1) _____
Complete a homefinder form through the website of the centre where the animal is staying. If the pet is still available, we will get in contact with you.

2) _____
Absolutely! We never stop caring. Whatever question or problem you may have, ask us, and we'll do all we can to help you.

3) _____
Certainly. We'll arrange an in-shelter pet-introduction session to see how they get on.

4) _____
Contact your local centre and answer a selection of questions about your pet. Please note that our centres may have waiting lists so they might not be able to accept your pet immediately.

5) _____
You are not required to pay if you need us to find a new home for your beloved pet, but we will be grateful for a donation.

6) _____
Yes, but please note that we cannot accept used wooden items and we can only accept unopened food in the original packaging.

7) _____
If you are over sixteen, we would love to have you on the team. Check our vacancies page for details.

8) _____
What we are looking for is a love of animals and we will give you the training you need for the role.

A) Is there a fee to give up my own pet to NAWT?
B) Is there an age limit for adopting a pet?
~~C) Is there an adoption fee?~~
D) What skills and experience do I need for volunteering?
E) I am interested in adopting – what do I need to do?
F) How long does the adoption process take?
G) Will I receive any ongoing support after taking my new pet home?
H) Can I adopt an animal if I already have pets?
I) Do I need an appointment to meet the animal I've chosen for adoption?
K) How old do I have to be to volunteer at a NAWT shelter?
L) If I need to give up my own pet, how do I start the process?
M) If my pet dies, can I donate items like toys, bowls or food?

MONET AND VENICE

Claude Monet's paintings of Venice are headlining an exhibition for the first time in more than a century. Monet is best (0) _____ , and his paintings of Venice are less well known.

In 1908, the French impressionist and his wife, Alice, travelled to Venice on holiday. When they arrived, he told her that the city was "too beautiful" to paint, and (9) _____ . Being in his late 60s at the time, he didn't want to go in the first place, but his wife (10) _____ , and eventually he agreed. He became so (11) _____ that he was able to overcome his doubts. They spent two months in Venice, and he painted 37 oil-on-canvas paintings.

While some of the Venice paintings have (12) _____ , the Brooklyn Museum's new exhibition is the first that takes that group of work as its focus since 1912.

Monet's work is celebrated now, and he's often (13) _____ , but when he was painting, his work wasn't as accepted. His style, with its visible brushstrokes, bright colours and soft appearance, is widely (14) _____ , but it was radical and often criticised in its time.

The exhibition provides context on how the artworks fit into Monet's life and career. "It is well-known that he was a painter of light, but he was also a painter of water throughout his entire career," Lisa Small, the curator of the exhibition explains. "We wanted to show how Venice, a place where you're surrounded by water and buildings are (15) _____ , ended up being the perfect Monet theme".

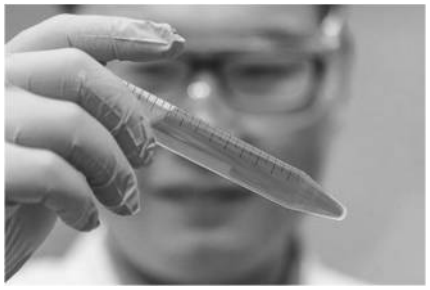

A) painted scenes from everyday life
B) fascinated by the location's light and atmosphere
~~C) known for his paintings of water lilies~~
D) represented his artistic anxiety
E) reflected in the water
F) called the leader of the Impressionist movement
G) encouraged him to visit the Italian city with her
H) shown in the final gallery of the exhibition
I) appeared in other shows over the years
K) admired in the art world today
L) added that he was too old to paint such beautiful things

FOOD COLOURING LETS SCIENTISTS SEE THROUGH SKIN

Using a common yellow food colouring called tartrazine, scientists at Stanford University have created a liquid that allows them to see through the skin of a living mouse.

The scientists mixed tartrazine with water to make a special lotion. When they tested this mixture on thin slices of chicken breast, the chicken turned clear. Next, the researchers repeated the method on the skin of living mice. First, they shaved the mice to get the hair out of the way. Then, they rubbed the liquid on the head of the mice. In a few minutes, the skin became see-through, and the scientists were able to see a mouse's brain. When the mixture was rubbed on the skin of a mouse's belly, the organs inside, like the liver and bowels, became clearly visible. When the liquid was washed off, the skin returned to normal.

To understand how the new discovery works, think about how light travels through different materials. Skin is made of many different parts, like water, fat, and protein. These different materials scatter the light, making it hard to see through skin. Tartrazine makes the watery parts of the skin more like the other areas. When the light mostly bends the same way, the skin becomes see-through.

The discovery could one day allow doctors to detect medical problems inside the body without needing to do surgery. However, the mixture has only been tested on animals, and more work needs to be done before a similar method can be used on humans.

0) The research was supported by the food company that produces tartrazine.

16) Tartrazine is normally used in the production of soft drinks.

17) The liquid mixture was first tested on meat before being applied to mice.

18) The tartrazine mixture was put under the skin of a mouse with a needle.

19) In the test, the liquid made both the skin and hair of the mouse turn see-through.

20) When its skin became see-through, the scientists could see inside the body of the mouse.

21) The effect of the liquid was temporary and disappeared after the mixture was removed.

22) When the skin is lit with UV light, the see-through effect lasts longer.

23) The method works because tartrazine removes water from the skin.

24) A similar method could help doctors see inside human bodies without cutting them open.

25) Before starting research on humans, the method will be tested on animals with thicker skin.

- There is an example (0) at the beginning.

BAREFOOT

I had just moved to New Zealand, at age 12, (0) _____ a new friend suggested that we go out to the corner store for some candy.

It wasn't a warm day — July or August; (17) _____ was around 50 degrees Fahrenheit (10°C) that day in Auckland. However, when I stopped (18) _____ put on my shoes, she looked puzzled. Why would I need shoes (19) _____ a quick trip down the road?

New Zealanders — and their Australian cousins — like to go barefoot. They'll often choose (20) _____ go to the gas station, the grocery store and even the pub without shoes.

Seth Kugel, a writer for The New York Times, put it (21) _____ this: "People walk around barefoot. On the street. In supermarkets. All over. It's not everyone, but it's a significant enough minority to be quite surprising and (22) _____ bit confusing." In Perth, at least one elementary school has a "shoes optional" policy, with administrators claiming that going barefoot "helped children strengthen (23) _____ feet and body."

There isn't a clear reason (24) _____ it's so common to go barefoot. Some say it is due to the influence of the two nations' ancient cultures. Others see it (25) _____ evidence of a more casual, down-to-earth culture.

Welcome to the Listening component of the Matura Examination.

The listening material and the instructions are recorded on this CD, and the tasks and instructions are printed in your test booklet.

- There will be three tasks, and every recording will be played twice.
- The tasks will begin with some music, and then you will hear (and you can also read) the instructions to the task.
- This will be followed by a silent period on the CD in order to give you some time to look at the task in your test booklet before hearing the text.
- Then we will play the recording in one piece.
- After another short silent period, we will play the recording for the second time, but now in shorter sections and with breaks between the sections in order to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Please note that the first item in each task (marked with a tick [✓]) is always an example.

The whole test is exactly 30 minutes long.

Good luck!

- In this section you will listen to one of Ronald Reagan's favourite jokes.
- Your task is to complete the sentences with two words indicated by the gaps, using the exact words you hear in the recording.
- First, you will have some time to study the task, and then we will play the whole recording in one piece.
- Then, you will hear the recording again, but this time we will play the text in shorter sections to give you enough time to write down your answers.

Task 1

You are a visiting student in Iowa, and you have an appointment with a local dentist, Dr Evans. This would be your second visit, but you have just realized that you won't be able to make it.

Write an email of 80-100 words to Dr Evans in which you

- remind him of who you are and when your original appointment is,
- apologize and explain why you can't go,
- ask for a new appointment, suggesting the days of the week that suit you.

Begin your email like this:

Dear Dr Evans,

Task 2

You have an online group with international friends you used to study with in Britain, and you have recently found the following message from Santokh, a boy from India.

Hi Guys,

You saw photos of my younger sister, Sriti, from last year, but I bet you wouldn't recognize her now.

She is thirteen and has always been well-rounded. Some family members have teased her about this for years, and I don't think they realize how much it has hurt her. Now she is getting thinner and thinner, and I'm very worried. She never seems to eat properly, and I've heard her tell our mother that she has eaten at school or at a friend's house when I know it isn't true. At mealtimes, she keeps saying that she doesn't like this and that, apparently, she no longer likes her once-favourite dishes either. Our parents don't notice this because they are too busy with their own problems.

I'm concerned she may have developed an eating disorder or whatever you call it, but she won't talk about it, and I don't know what to do.

Santokh

Write a comment of 100-120 words to Santokh in which you tell him

- if you think his sister is in danger,
- if it is an older brother's duty to do something in a situation like this,
- what you think could be done (at least 2 options),
- which of the above options you would personally prefer and why.

Begin your comment like this:
